"SINGS FOR LUNCH, JUMPS FOR HIS DINNER"

101ST ABN. DIV.
FT. CAMPBELL, KY.

MOST members of Congress, meeting with Armed Forces constituents during field visits, are quite content to settle for a firm handshake and some quiet chatter about folks at home.

That's not the case with Representative Stuyvesant Wainwright (R-NY). Instead of the routine handshake, he has a way of joining constituents in jumping out of airplanes.

An Army Reserve lieutenant colonel, Representative Wainwright during a whirlwind two-day visit here, spoke at a luncheon of senior staff officers of Maj. Gen. William C. Westmoreland's 101 Airborne Division and said "I will have to sing for my luncheon and jump for my dinner."

Turn to page 3 for a photograph of the jumping Congressman and a JOURNAL on-the-scene report concerning the readiness of the "Screaming Eagles," to go anywhere, anytime, and fight.

JOURNAL HIGHLIGHTS:

New Quality Accent; MATS Needs Jets; Naval College Class; Help For Families

(Triple Threat Weapon, Page 30)

THIS issue of THE JOURNAL, approaching the anniversary date of the Military Pay Act of 1958, highlights Army and Air Force reports on quality gains that had been envisioned by the Cordier Committee. Lt. Gen. James F. Collins, USA, Deputy CofS for Personnel, has prepared an exclusive article for JOURNAL readers—Page 13—on army gains. The Air Force has made a similar account available—see adjoining column.

Senate Action To Retain Army, Marine Strength Poses Problems At Pentagon

Pentagon legal experts are in a tangle over a new Congressional move to force the Administration to keep 900,000 men in the active Army and 200,000 in the Marine Corps during the current fiscal year.

An ultimate determination of the problem is certain to fall to the White House or the Attorney General if House-Senate conferees uphold the Senate's action in adopting mandatory language concerning the force levels of the two Services.

Without a single dissenting voice, the Senate voted on 29 April to prevent the Army from spending any operation and maintenance funds for the purpose of reducing its strength below 900,000.

On the following day, the Senators, with a lone let's-proceed-cautiously statement from Senator Leverett Saltonstall (R-Mass.), adopted even stronger language establishing a mandatory floor for the Marine Corps.

Senator Paul Douglas (D-Ill.), who, together with Senator Mike Mansfield (D-Mont.), authored the Marine Corps proposal, said the Senate's action is de-

Consider 20,000 Boost In AF Regulars; Improvement Seen

The Air Force is studying the possibility of boosting its Regular Officer ranks by about 20,000 numbers over the next several years.

Some 6,000 additional Regular commissions, to be approved by 30 June 1963, already are authorized under Defense Department ceilings. Special DoD sanction would have to be obtained for the other 14,000.

Personnel planners said they are taking a new look at the Regular Officer structure to see if the DoD ceilings of 55,540 should be lifted in favor of the statutory ceiling of 69,425. At the end of June, this year, the Air Force will have about 49,000 Regular Officers and the number will continue to grow until it meets the DoD ceiling in mid-1963.

Disclosure of the study to add 14,000 more Regulars after that date came in reply to questions by a JOURNAL reporter during a Pentagon briefing arranged by

Permanent Eagles Will Be Speedier For Some In AF Than Temporary Route

FOR the first time in almost a decade, some Air Force lieutenant colonels this year and in the years ahead will find that the quickest route to eagle rank is through permanent, rather than temporary, selection.

Since 1950, Air Force permanent selections to colonel have been made exclusively from among permanent lieutenant colonels who held temporary rank as colonel.

Lt. Gen. Emmett O'Donnell, Deputy Chief of Staff for Personnel, has indicated that beginning with the 1959 selections—a permanent colonel's board meets 18 May—it can be anticipated that

THE ARMY said this week that a new selection board for permanent colonels has not yet been set. It was indicated, however, that a board may meet in the Fall.

The last Army selections to permanent colonel were made last June.

It can be anticipated that the forthcoming selection will see some insignia changes, but a large number of such advancements are not anticipated. The new zone has yet to be set.

Pentagon Backs VanZandt Plan Adding $578,000 To Retired Pay

The Department of Defense has endorsed a $578,000 pay boost bill for some members of the Armed Forces retired before 1 October 1949.

The legislation was introduced early in February by Representative James E. VanZandt (R-Pa.). The House Armed Services Committee asked and has obtained the Department's views on the proposal.

Acting for the DoD, the Air Force has told Congress it "concurs in the bill except to the extent that it would provide additional retirement benefits for certain members retired for physical disability and for certain retired regular officers with WW I service."

The Air Force suggested a substitute measure eliminating the two objectionable provisions and Mr. VanZandt immediately introduced a new bill HR 6833.

The original proposal was designed to permit members retired prior to 1 Octo-

Clifton Von Kann, slated to be Director of Army Aviation (see story on page 7); Maj. Gen. Hamilton H. Howze, commander of the 82d Airborne and former director of Army Aviation; Brig. Gen. Ernest F. Easterbrook, commanding general of the Army Aviation Center and recently director of Army Aviation; and Brig. Gen. Stanley Larsen, assistant commandant of the Infantry School at Ft. Benning and a parachutist.

Monroe families visited aboard while the sub was tied up at the Ft. Monroe wharf.

Secretary Gates Wins NRA's Highest Honor

Secretary of the Navy Thomas S. Gates, Jr., has been presented the Naval Reserve Association's Distinguished Award "in recognition of his significant achievements in the fields of administration, career motivation, moral leadership, and scientific education within the Navy, and outstanding leadership and contributions to the national security of the United States."

The award was made by Cdr. A. Wifield Chapin, USNR, President of NRA at its 1 May meeting in the Nation's Capital before a distinguished audience of Navy Department officials and members of NRA's National Executive Committee.

Present at the ceremony honoring Secretary Gates, who retires 1 June, were Assistant Secretary (Personnel and Reserve Forces) Richard Jackson; Admiral James S. Russell, VCNO, representing Admiral Arleigh A. Burke who is out of the country; VAdm. H. Page Smith, Chief of Naval Personnel; and Capt. W. M. Foster, Director, Naval Reserve Plans Division, OCNO.

NAME NUCLEAR FRIGATE

The Navy's first nuclear-powered guided missile frigate will be named for Commodore William Bainbridge, hero of the Tripoli War and the War of 1812.

The keel of the ship will be laid 15 May at Bethlehem Steel Company, Quincy, Mass. The Bainbridge (DLGN 25) is scheduled to be delivered in January 1962.

Two other nuclear-powered surface ships are being constructed for the Navy. The guided missile cruiser Long Beach, also being built by Bethlehem Steel at Quincy, is to be launched this year. The attack aircraft carrier Enterprise, at Newport News Shipbuilding and Drydock Company, Newport News, Va., will be launched in 1960.

RAdm. Keith Heads Reserve Policy Board

RAdm. Robert T. S. Keith, Assistant Chief of Naval Operations (Naval Reserve), has been named President of the National Naval Reserve Policy Board ordered by Navy Secretary Thomas S. Gates, Jr., to convene 11 May in the Pentagon.

The NNRPB is a statutory board that meets each year to consider recommendations of active and inactive duty Reserve officers and enlisted men.

President Names Navy Secretary

President Eisenhower on 5 May nominated Under Secretary of the Navy William B. Franke to be Secretary of the Navy, succeeding Secretary Thomas S. Gates, Jr., whose resignation becomes effective on 1 June.

The President also named Assistant Secretary of the Navy Fred A. Bantz to be Under Secretary, succeeding Secretary Franke.

Marines On Parade

The Marine Corps has renewed its annual series of ceremonial parades at the Marine Barracks, Eighth and Eye Sts., S. E., Washington, D. C.

The colorful parades are being conducted at 5 p. m. each Friday through 29 May and at 9 p. m. each Friday from 29 May through 9 October. Thereafter, the ceremonies will be held at 5 p. m. each Friday until the final parade on 6 November.

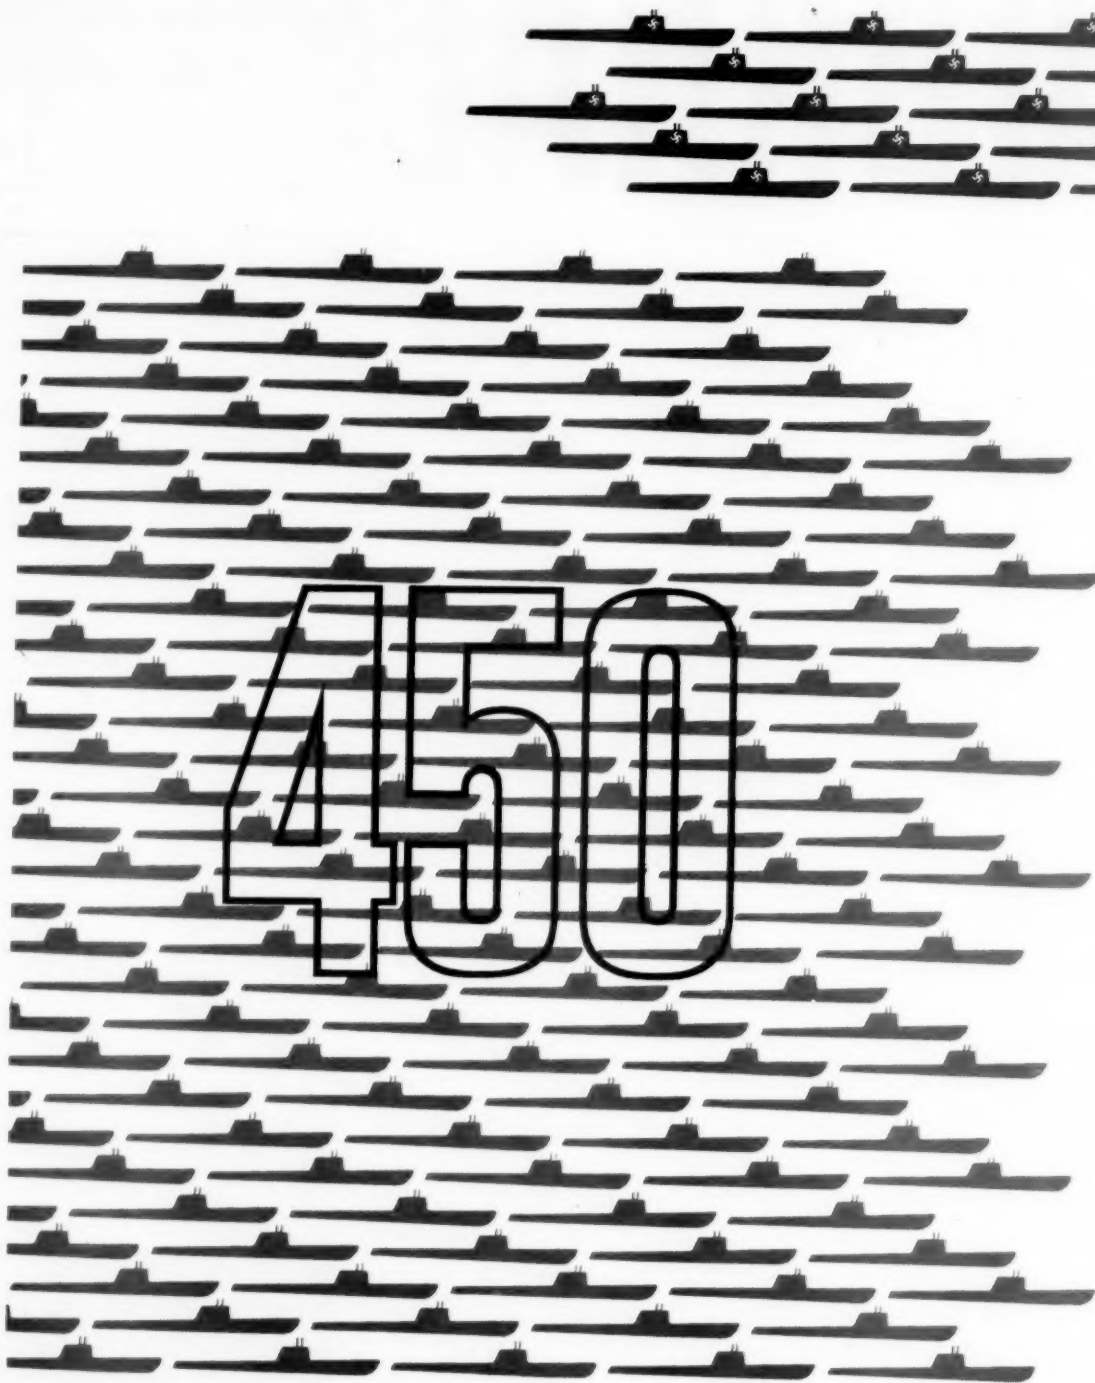

General Randolph McC. Pate, Marine Commandant, invites the public to attend.

Capt. Lautrup Heads New London Sub Base

Capt. George W. Lautrup, Jr., Commander, Submarine Squadron Eight, has been named to succeed Capt. Philip W. Garnett as Commander of the U. S. Submarine Base, New London, Conn.

Captain Garnett joins the Staff of Commander, Service Squadron Two, Norfolk, Va.

Captain Lautrup will be relieved as Squadron Eight CO by Capt. Stephen H. Gimber, reporting from command of the attack transport, USS Monrovia.

EIGHT TIMES GREATER THAN THE U-BOAT THREAT

Fifty-seven submarines came close to strangling world commerce and knocking the Allies out of World War II. This was Hitler's U-boat strength at the start of the war. Today it's the sobering fact behind estimates of what 450 subs might do. For this is the threat the U. S. now faces. Today's sub is far more powerful than before... a more deadly menace to American overseas commerce, 99.85% of which still goes by ship. And today there's the additional menace of sub-launched nuclear missiles, which open our inland to possible devastation. If the Free World is to survive, the submarine threat must be solved. Primary fighters in this urgent contest are the men and ships of the Navy.

103% STRENGTH

Although many Army units must be maintained below strength because of manpower shortages, STRAC units are allowed a soldier strength above T/O&E's.

The 101st Airborne Division is designed to have a strength of 11,480 soldiers, but is permitted 12,000.

This, explained Maj. Benjamin B. Hill, Division Plans Officer and a veteran of 281 jumps, is to assure that the division is in full combat readiness all the time.

VOUGHT KNOWS THIS ENEMY!

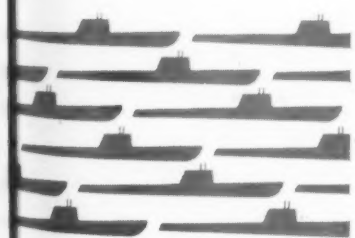

Years' close association with submarines, submarines and sub-launched missiles gives Chance Vought comprehensive and unique knowledge in the fight against enemy submarines.

Chance Vought has pooled this experience in a special engineer-scientist force. Today, these men are working with the Navy and its Fleet units in local antisubmarine areas.

For the Office of Naval Research, Vought's task force is studying advanced techniques in the general field of submarine detection. For the Navy Bureau of Aeronautics, the company is exploring new means of protecting forces at sea from attack by submarines.

Vought's antisub specialists are analyzing the whole problem. Solutions will include improved devices and methods for detecting and classifying undersea threats. Development of new aircraft, missiles, and control methods is under intensive study.

In whatever direction these studies lead, Vought's antisubmarine warfare task force has the specialists and experience to analyze, design, and produce.

"Screaming Eagles" Can Take To Air In Two Hours; Ready To Fight Anywhere In The World, Anytime

101ST AIRBORNE DIVISION
FT. CAMPBELL, KY.

If it should become necessary for Army forces to be deployed overseas on a moment's notice, there is no question that the first call will go to the 101st Airborne Division at Ft. Campbell, Ky.—the Army's first Pentomic unit—or to its sister division, the 82d Airborne at Ft. Bragg, N. C.

Maj. Gen. Westmoreland, 101st Commanding General, says his division—one of three in Maj. Gen. Robert F. Sink's Strategic Army Corps—is ready to go anywhere, anytime and fight.

The other STRAC is the 4th Infantry Division at Ft. Lewis, Wash.

"We are maintaining a constant two-hour readiness," General Westmoreland, told a JOURNAL reporter visiting the division here. "This means that a minimum of one rifle company of one of our five battle groups can be loaded—depending upon the availability of aircraft—and sent on its way in less than 120 minutes. Other elements would quickly follow."

It so happened that this week the "alert" battle group of the 101st was Col. Talton W. Long's 502d Infantry, whose Deputy Commanders are Lt. Col. John P. Arntz and Lt. Col. Joseph A. McCullough.

Spearhead unit of the 502d during the week was Company B, designated the "first ready company" for a two-week period.

While holding status as "first ready company," a unit of the "Screaming Eagles" greatly restricts the activities of its members.

Married men are required to leave their families and live in barracks. Each man must sign out whenever he leaves the company area for a haircut, or attend a movie. No training is permitted beyond a 30 minute march to the barracks.

The Company Commander, Capt. Ralph Moore, whose 12 years military service include six years as a Marine, told of the

GETTING THE JUMP

A major factor in Maj. Gen. William C. Westmoreland's confidence concerning the ability of his 101st Airborne Division to go anywhere, anytime and fight is the high skill level of the division's senior Non-Commissioned officers.

The General made it a particular point to introduce a visiting newsmen to M/Sgt George W. Dunaway, Sergeant Major of the 187th Infantry. He had 284 jumps to his credit, made it 285 during the Annual Training Test on 5 May.

First Sgt. Fred Burleson of Capt. Eugene Hammond's Company A of the 187th said he had lost count of his jumps.

Another soldier who received a special salute from General Westmoreland was M/Sgt Frank Ferguson of the 502d Infantry. He scored the top grade at Campbell in the E-8 examination.

detailed preparations taken to insure instant readiness for deployment, including such procedures as checks on inoculations, execution of power of attorney and arrangements for disposition of automobiles.

To sharpen the readiness of STRAC units, the 101st has been authorized to execute a number of high-speed move-outs, including aerial deployments to such distances as McChord AFB, Wash., Hill AFB, Utah, and March AFB, Calif. More are planned for the months ahead.

As is true throughout the 101st, Captain Moore's company includes senior Non-Commissioned officers with long years of service in the airborne. One of them, M/Sgt Vincent Farrell recently reported to Campbell after duty as advisor to the Royal Saudi Arabian Parachute Corps.

In addition to Colonel Long, the four other battle group commanders of the 101st are Col. Dorsey E. McCrory, 187th Infantry, a unit which Division Commander Westmoreland led in combat in Korea; Col. Gordon T. Kim-

Man From The Hill Gets Ready For Jump

101ST AIRBORNE DIVISION
FT. CAMPBELL, KY.

CLIMAXING a two-day visit here, Representative Stuyvesant Wainwright (R-NY), an Army Reserve lieutenant colonel, prepares to get aboard a Lockheed C-130 for a parachute jump. He was in good company.

Left to right are 1st Lt. James T. Collins, who put the Congressman through jump school at Ft. Bragg, N. C., three years ago; Representative Wainwright; SFC William Morris, a constituent from North Port, L. I., N. Y.; Maj. Gen. William W. Westmoreland, 101st Commanding General; and Capt. H. W. Barner, USAF, Aircraft Commander.

Fourteen constituents of the Congressman volunteered to join Colonel Wainwright and General Westmoreland in the late afternoon jump, perfectly executed.

JUMPMASTERS SALUTED — Brig. Gen. Charles W. G. Rich, Assistant Commander of the 101st Airborne Division at Ft. Campbell, Ky., congratulates two veteran jumpmasters, Sfc R. W. Bierkowski, left, and Sfc Mansfield Bias, right, following their supervision of the parachute jump by Congressman Wainwright and General Westmoreland.

brell, 327th Infantry; Col. Robert L. Ashworth, 501st Infantry; and Col. Harry H. Critz, until recently Chief of Staff, who commands the 506th Infantry.

Colonel Critz's successor as CofS is Col. Robert H. Safford, who is also President of Campbell's Sky Diving Club. Last Sunday, on a so-called day off from jumping duties, he made his first 10 second free fall jump.

Brig. Gen. Charles W. G. Rich is Assistant Division Commander/Operations.

Assistant Division Commander/Administration is Brig. Gen. Charles J. Timmes, a lawyer before entering the Army and proficient in Russian and German.

At Campbell to lead a team of umpires in scoring the Annual Training Test was Col. Joy K. Vallery, who commands the Support Group of the 82d Airborne Division at Bragg.

Support Group Commander for the 101st is Col. Henry P. Tucker.

In a departure from the original organization of the 101st, activated in September 1956 as the Army's first Pentomic division, Colonel Tucker recently was designated also as Division G-4.

This means that the G-4 is the only member of the Division staff to hold colonel's rank. General Westmoreland told THE JOURNAL he does not think this will be a problem.

(NEXT WEEK'S ISSUE will publish additional stories based on THE JOURNAL'S visit to Ft. Campbell).

Next Week—Recondo, AWA, Armor, Lackland, Space, AF Medical Reports

The 16 May issue of THE JOURNAL will feature on-the-scene reports from JOURNAL reporters covering varied activities in the Armed Forces. Here are some of the highlights:

RECONDO—Maj. Gen. William C. Westmoreland, 101st Airborne Division CG at Ft. Campbell, Ky., has inaugurated a new Recondo School—the name is a combination of Reconnaissance, Doughboy, and Commando—headed by a Medal of Honor winner.

AWA CONVENTION—The 16 May issue will describe activities at the annual meeting of the Aviation Writers Association in Washington, D. C., including a Pentagon visit and conference with top Department officials.

ARMOR ASSOCIATION—A JOURNAL reporter this weekend was attending the annual meeting of the U. S. Armor Association in Ft. Knox, Ky.

"GATEWAY" NEEDS HELP—The "Gateway" to the Air Force at Lackland AFB, Tex., is in urgent need of increased fiscal support. Some facilities "are beginning to fall apart," according to top officials there.

OUT IN SPACE—THE JOURNAL will feature a special report on plans for space men who will follow the original space astronauts in Project Mercury. This is based on an interview at Wright-Patterson AFB, Ohio.

AF MEDICAL PROGRESS—A JOURNAL reporter's visit to Lackland AFB, Tex., Randolph AFB, Tex., and Gunter AFB, Ala., is the basis for an exclusive report on new developments in Air Force medicine.

Permanent Eagles Will Be Speedier For Some In AF Than Temporary Route

From first page—
some of the Regular selections to colonel will mean insignia changes.

The Air Force, obviously seeking to provide equitable consideration for those wearing eagles and at the same time providing adequate advancement opportunity for lieutenant colonels, has embarked on a long-range permanent promotion plan that will be somewhat different than in recent years.

The 18 May board, to be headed by a lieutenant general with 12 major generals as members, will consider some 2316 eligible officers, including about 784 to be considered for the first time.

Of the latter number, 156 are temporary colonels, while 628 are both permanent and temporary lieutenant colonels.

It can be anticipated that a number of the 628 lieutenant colonels will be chosen.

The 1959 selections to permanent colonel will see about 353 officers chosen.

This is about 45% of the total of new eligibles—a percentage of selection which the Air Force intends to maintain through 1967-68, when the Air Force will reach its authorized strength of permanent colonels.

Last year's permanent colonel selection board reviewed the records of 2055 eligibles, including 935 for the first time. Of the 935, a total of 763, or 82%, were temporary colonels. Only 172 wore the insignia of lieutenant colonel.

1960 Forecast

In 1960, according to present forecasts, which could change somewhat as a result of temporary selection action, the Air Force will consider approximately 2432 for permanent colonel, choosing about 245. The eligibles will include 566 being considered for the first time—only 67 of them temporary colonels.

The obvious fact that many lieutenant colonels will reach colonel by means of permanent, rather than temporary selection, as in the past, is pointed up in an analysis of this year's selections to temporary colonel.

Out of a total eligibility list of some 5700, the Air Force was able to make only 279 selections for temporary eagles.

The Air Force's plans envision that permanent lieutenant colonels, who this year must have at least five years in that rank for consideration, will in the next five year period become eligible for consideration after two years' service as permanent lieutenant colonel.

This would be in line with the provisions of the Officer Personnel Act of 1947.

As a new service in 1948 and with the subsequent impact of the Korean Conflict promotion programs, the Air Force found it necessary, in establishing a permanent officer promotion structure, to advance many officers to permanent ranks ahead of the OPA schedule.

This will cease to be the case in the years to come.

What will happen insofar as promotions to colonel are concerned is that many officers will find it necessary to wait longer for their eagles, but with assurance of improved selection opportunities.

Revised Program

The revised promotion program, an inevitable result of the fact that the Air Force officer structure is maturing, will see permanent lieutenant colonels coming up for selection to permanent colonel for the first time in their 23d year of service, with advancement to be made in their 24th year.

This will occur in 1964, when officers who made permanent lieutenant colonel in 1962 after 21 years' promotion list service, will be considered. Those chosen will be promoted in 1965.

In the years ahead, the percentage of eligible officers for permanent colonel who are temporary colonels will drop, so that in 1963 only about 5% of the eligibles will be temporary colonels.

It is interesting to note that scores of Air Force temporary colonels have had numerous opportunities for selection to permanent colonel—in some cases as many as 10 chances.

Realistically, it cannot be anticipated that the forthcoming board will pick up many of the officers who have failed of selection several times or more.

Among these officers are large numbers who had outstanding records, but who in making their eagle, were not required to compete on any scale comparable to the rigorous selection now required for the greatly restricted vacancies.

What General O'Donnell and his associates have sought is a program that will give balanced recognition to length of service and to the need for providing advancement opportunities for outstanding lieutenant colonels.

M/G Kalberer Gets No. 2 CONAC Post; M/G Nazarro

Maj. Gen. Alfred F. Kalberer, Deputy Commander of the Fifteenth Air Force at March AFB, Calif., will become Vice-Commander of the Continental Air Command 13 July.

Maj. Gen. Joseph J. Nazarro, USAF Headquarters, will succeed General Kalberer 3 August.

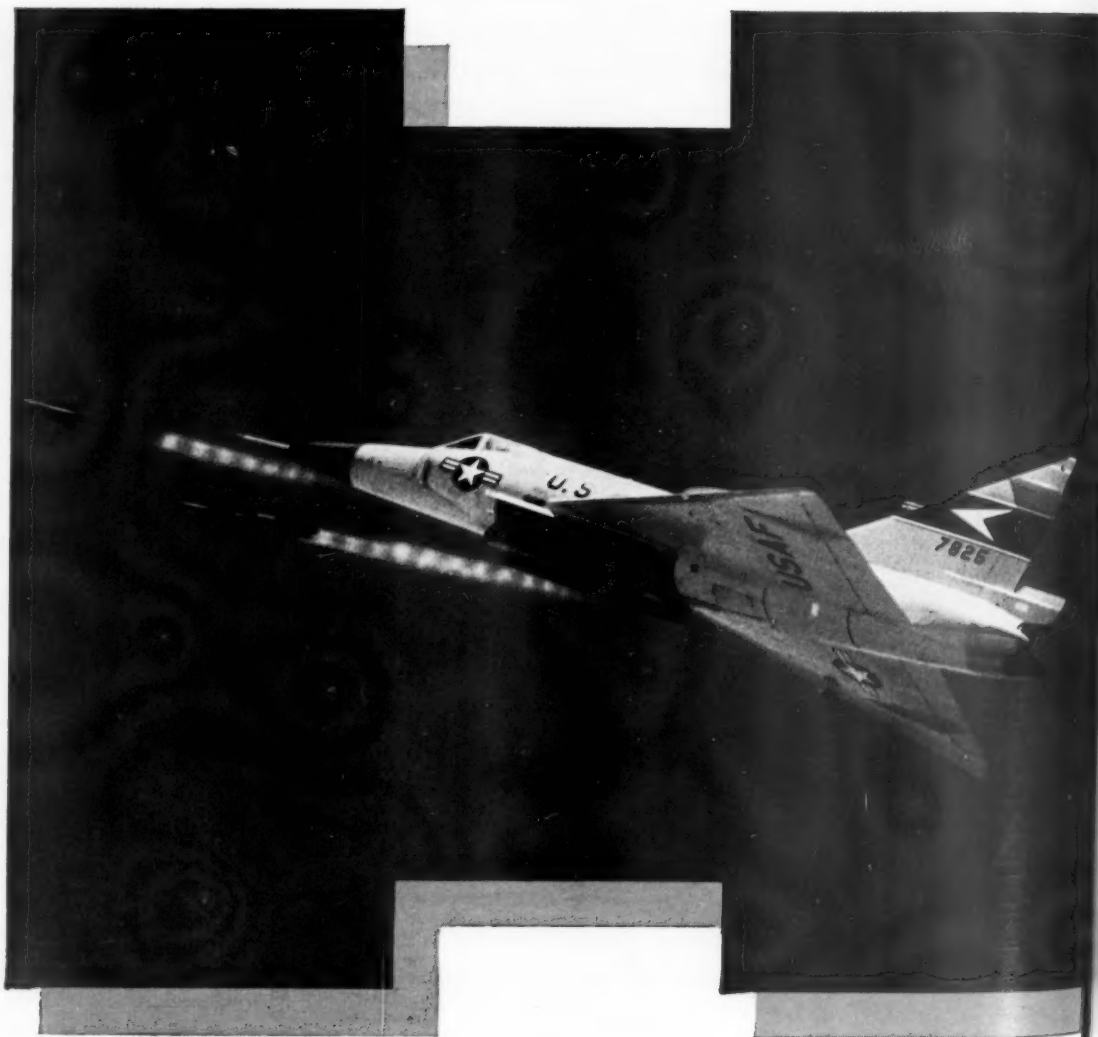

SPACE SCHOOL

A name change is being considered for the Air Force's School of Aviation Medicine at Randolph AFB, Tex.

Randolph officials want to add "Space" to the school's title. New name would be "School of Aerospace Medicine."

The change has the backing of Air Force Surgeon General, Maj. Gen. Oliver K. Niess.

Sharpening

Air Force Considers 20,000 Boost In Regular Officers; Career Improvement Seen

From first page—

Lt. Gen. Emmett O'Donnell, jr., Deputy Chief of Staff, Personnel.

The briefing, conducted by Col. F. W. Horton, Chief of the Policy Division, Directorate of Personnel Planning, was designed to point up improvements in the Air Force personnel structure which have resulted from the 1958 Military Pay Act, and recently instituted manpower controls.

Colonel Horton told newsmen the first comprehensive report from major Air Force commanders on all actions taken to implement the new personnel procedures, indicate that the Air Force "now can more readily afford to select our personnel and to turn down those who can't handle the job the way it should be handled."

This statement was backed up by statistical presentations which show:

- Increasing demotions in both officer and airmen ranks.
- Increasing numbers of officers who are being placed on marginal control rosters.

- Increasing numbers of airmen who are determined ineligible for reenlistment.

- Increasing elimination of airmen who are determined to be inapt, unsuitable and unfit.

- Increasing elimination of non-producing officers.

- An improved career force, including 57% career airmen in 1958 as contrasted with 26% in 1953 and 85.1% career officers in 1958 as contrasted with 65% in 1956.

- Greater selectivity in enlistments and higher aptitude levels among enlistees.

Air Force commanders reported, Colonel Horton said, that the airmen elimination programs plus the early release program and tighter reenlistment controls "have resulted in a substantial increase in the quality of our airman corps."

The Air Force Provost Marshal's report for 1958 also "indicates a downward trend in all areas—AWOL's, desertions, misdemeanors, felonies and traffic accidents."

Emphasis on the identification of the ineffective NCO is continuing, the Colonel said, by "establishment of a NCO marginal control roster program."

After evaluating such rosters operated in the commands, Air Force Headquarters recently formulated a new regulation incorporating the best features of the command directives. The regulation has been coordinated within the Air Staff and is expected to be published about the time this issue of THE JOURNAL reaches the field.

Colonel Horton said NCO's identified as marginal will be placed on control rosters maintained by the wing commanders and periodically reviewed by major commanders. Those who do not come up to the desired standard after a three-month observation period will be subject to demotion or elimination action.

He said the Air Force also is denying reenlistment to airmen with over 30 years' service and those with over 20 years' service who are over 55 years of age. Also, a policy is "now in the final planning stages" to consider for selective reenlistment all airmen with over 20 years' service.

Officer Improvements

In the officer procurement area, the presentation showed how the Air Force has increased the quality of its Aviation Cadet students by new selection procedures and by emphasizing formal educational achievement. The number of fully Faster flying, higher climbing, farther reaching... the new supersonic Falcon is today's best performing air-to-air missile.

The Super Falcon GAR-3, newest in the family of Falcon missiles, is powered by a new and longer-lived solid propellant rocket engine. It can climb far beyond the altitude capabilities of the interceptor and destroy an enemy H-bomber in any kind of weather.

Hughes Research & Development engineers, always moving forward, are also developing the GAR-9, a new atomic air-to-air missile. This missile will be used with the F-108, a fantastically swift, long range interceptor being built for the Air Defense Command.

The new atomic missile will be able to reach out over extremely long distances and destroy enemy bombers long before they reach their U.S. and Canadian targets.

At Hughes, advanced Research & Development is not confined to guided missiles. Investigations presently underway at the Hughes R&D Laboratories include advanced airborne systems, space vehicles, nuclear electronics, and subsurface electronics...just to name a few.

At Hughes, in Fullerton, engineers are engaged in the research, development and manufacture of advanced three-dimensional radar systems.

Throughout the Hughes organization, special emphasis is put on building reliability into every system to assure maximum utilization under the most severe conditions.

Advanced concepts...reliable hardware...these are the factors which have made Hughes one of the world's leading electronics producers.

MEDAL OF HONOR WINNER GETS ALASKAN GROUP

A Medal of Honor recipient, Col. Cecil H. Bolton, Chief of the Troop Training and Inspection Branch, G-3 Section, Fourth Army, Ft. Sam Houston, Tex., will assume new duties as Commander, 1st Battle Group, 23d Infantry, Alaska.

Colonel Bolton was cited for the nation's highest decoration in a pitched battle which followed the crossing of the Mark River in Holland on the night of 2 November 1944. At the time he was a leader of the weapons platoon of Company E, 413th Infantry Regiment. He also wears the Silver Star, the Bronze Star with Metal Pendant, Purple Heart with Cluster, Combat Infantryman's Badge, and Distinguished Unit Citation, in addition to other decorations.

Other Medal of Honor recipients serving at Fourth Army Headquarters are Maj. Jack L. Treadwell and Capt. Stanley T. Adams, both assigned to the G-3 Section.

Colonel Bolton married Miss Bessie Mabel McNabb of San Antonio, in 1939.

L/C Rogers Riley Q.M.

Lt. Col. Poole Rogers is the new 1st Infantry Division Quartermaster at Ft. Riley, Kans., replacing Capt. Charles Klopp, who becomes Executive Officer.

In 1956 Colonel Rogers went to Frankfurt, Germany, where he served as Commanding Officer of the Army Quartermaster Mortuary System—Europe. He lives at Riley with his wife, Dorothy, and their two children Sharon Ann, 12, and Donald Lee, 5.

B/G von Kann Will Head Army Aviation

Following weeks of delay, the Army has announced that Brig. Gen. Clifton F. von Kann, Assistant 82d Airborne Division Commander at Ft. Bragg, N. C., will become Director of Army Aviation in July.

Earlier, it had been announced that he would be assigned the Office of the Deputy CofS for Military Operations.

General von Kann, 43, is a qualified helicopter pilot, as well as a paratrooper. He is currently training in fixed wing flying. He is a graduate of the Command and General Staff College, Armed Forces Staff College, National War College, and the Harvard School of Business Administration.

General von Kann succeeds Brig. Gen. Ernest F. Easterbrook, who became Commanding General of the Army Aviation Center at Ft. Rucker, Ala., 16 February following the death in an aircraft accident 9 December 1958 of Maj. Gen.

Bogardus S. Cairns.

At Bragg, General von Kann has served under Maj. Gen. Hamilton H. Howze, 82d Airborne Division Commander and the first Director of Army Aviation.

Commenting on his new appointment General von Kann said:

"Today, battlefield mobility is a prime Army objective. I do not believe we have yet succeeded in exploiting the mobility which Army Aviation has already made available . . . or, as a consequence, in clearly recognizing its future potential. To this new and challenging assignment I bring with me a solid conviction that Army Aviation can and will be a major force in solving our tactical problems on all types of battlefields."

7th Army Safety Honor Goes To Aviation Sec.

One of the best flying records in the history of the Seventh Army, involving 8,259 accident-free flight hours, has won the Seventh Army Certificate of Merit for Safety for the Aviation Section of the 160th Signal Group.

Covering the period 1 June 1957, to 31 March 1959, and involving instrument flights, courier runs and routine flying assignments, the award was presented in a ceremony at Stuttgart and was accepted on behalf of the signal group by Capt. Chester R. Mead, the group aviation officer.

The award was presented by Col. J. M. Kimbrough, Jr., Seventh Army signal officer.

Army Aviators To Meet

The first Annual National meeting of the Army Aviation Association of America will be held at the Shoreham Hotel, Washington, D. C. on 5-7 June. The meeting date signifies the 17th Anniversary of Army Aviation.

The meeting on 5 June will feature Lt. Gen. A. G. Trudeau, Chief of Research and Development; on 6 June Maj. Gen. H. H. Howze will discuss operational requirements and in the evening, Senator John L. McClellan will present the Army Aviation Safety award. The business meeting is the morning of 7 June 1959.

Col. Foss Will Get Airborne Signal Post

Col. Erling J. Foss, the Army's Signal Training Center CofS at Ft. Gordon, Ga., for nearly 22 months, will become Signal Officer of the XVIII Airborne Corps at Ft. Bragg, N. C.

Lt. Col. John K. McWilliams, who arrived at ASTC three years ago to become Comptroller and Deputy CofS for the past 14 months, will report this summer to the 25th Infantry Division at Schofield Barracks, Hawaii, where he will be Division Signal Officer and commander of the 125th Signal Battalion (Inf).

A native of Minneapolis, Minn., Colonel Foss lives at Qts. 9, Maglin Terrace at Gordon, with his wife, the former Gladys A. Skaug, and their three daughters, Lenore, 11, Kristin, 9, and Zeline, 4.

Colonel McWilliams lives at Qts. 11, Maglin Terrace, with his wife, the former Isabel Wier of Athens, Ga., and their two sons, Billy, 9, and John K., Jr., 18 months.

Maj. Willard Heads New Army Aviation Chapter

The first meeting of the Executive Board of the Camp Wolters Chapter of the Army Aviation Association of America met recently in the U. S. Army Primary Helicopter School headquarters conference room.

Officers of the group are: President, Maj. Leland H. Willard; executive vice-president, Capt. Gilbert R. Hickenbottom; vice-president in charge of Army affairs, Capt. James H. Chappell; vice-president in charge of National Guard affairs, Donald Wolgamott, Southern Airways; vice-president in charge of industrial affairs, Joe Shields, Southern Airways; vice-president in charge of public affairs, Capt. Frederick B. Weller; secretary, 1st Lt. Ronald W. Metzger; and treasurer, 1st Lt. Richard Scott.

Ft. Sam, To D. C., To Paris

Lt. Col. Clem G. Hailey, who has served as Chief of the Personnel Division, Adjutant General Section, Headquarters Fourth U. S. Army, since August, 1955, left 1 May for a new assignment in Washington, D. C.

He will be assigned to International Security Affairs, Office of the Secretary of Defense, for nine months and then will go to Paris, France, for similar duties.

New BuPers Plan Means More Cockpit Time For Highly Motivated Aviators

THE Bureau of Naval Personnel has developed a new "detailing tool" that ultimately will have an impact on the career pattern of all junior Naval Aviators.

Known as the Aviator Evaluation Report, the new form will be used to determine whether junior pilots will receive assignments to cockpit billets or to posts in ships or on staffs during their second sea tours.

The AER, being prepared by the Bureau, is expected to be in the hands of commanding officers of operational units in time for use this Summer. CO's will score young pilots on the basis of airmanship and motivation. The recommendation of operational commanders will play a large part in the type of assignment given to junior flyers during their second sea tours.

The objective of the plan, a BuPers spokesman told THE JOURNAL, "is to place the right man in the right job and to improve combat readiness by insuring that the most highly qualified flying officers are given the opportunity to spend the most time in cockpit slots during the early stages of their careers."

At present, all graduate pilots are assigned to operational squadrons for tours ranging from three to four years. This is followed by a shore assignment of about three years. Then flyers are reassigned to sea for the second time with about one-half the time spent in a squadron and about one-half of their tours in a ship or on a staff.

Under the new plan, the career pattern remains the same until the pilot is assigned to sea for the second time. Highly motivated pilots who display excellence in airmanship during their first sea tours, will be given billets in operational flying units for the duration of their second four-year sea tours. Others will be assigned split tours of duty in ships and on staffs.

The upshot of the new plan is that some pilots will be posted to cockpit billets for approximately 11½ years during their first and second sea tours combined, while some will be assigned to flying billets for only 7½ years. At present, all junior Naval aviators serve in operational squadrons for approximately 9½ years.

In addition to improving the combat effectiveness of combat squadrons, the Navy hopes the plan will result in cutting back the accident rate, pointing out that the cost of Naval aircraft has risen from hundreds of thousands of dollars to millions since WW II.

The Bureau emphasized that officers assigned to split tours during their second sea tours will have the same promotion opportunities as those tabbed for full flying slots during their second ground at sea. A BuPers spokesman points out that with the complexity of shipboard operations increasing, there is an equal need for flyers and for specialists, such as communications, material and logistics support and combat planning. He also noted that as officers advance in rank the Navy has fewer cockpit seat requirements. At the completion of a second sea tour an officer normally has attained the rank of lieutenant commander. There is only a 25% opportunity for pilots to command squadrons. The majority move into staff work. It was stressed that the type of assignment made under the new plan has no bearing on advancement chances since the ultimate goal in both categories is command at sea. Second sea tour officers—whether serving in cockpit slots or in staff assignments—will be required to become proficient in shipboard skills leading to command.

The new plan is viewed as a special opportunity by patrol plane pilots, since it gives them an opportunity to serve aboard ships.

At present, the majority of ASW pilots operate from shore stations. The new plan calls for rotation of all pilot classifications to provide opportunities for shipboard experience.

The Bureau said that the new plan is not inflexible that officers assigned to split tours during their second at-sea posting may later be reassigned to operational flying duties.

Cdr. Howell Leads Champ's Air Group

Cdr. Wiley B. Howell, Commanding Officer of Anti-Submarine Squadron 30, has assumed duties as Commander Air Group (CAG) aboard the ASW support aircraft carrier, USS Lake Champlain.

In this capacity he will serve as Departmental Head of the squadrons that soon will participate in training exercises in Guantanamo Bay and in the Mediterranean.

The Air Group is comprised of Helicopter Anti-Submarine Squadron One, led by Cdr. R. G. Mellin; Carrier Airborne Early Warning Squadron 12, commanded by Capt. Leonard E. Ewoldt, and VS-30.

U.S. AIR FORCE LOGISTICS SUPPORT

The man:

A member of an Army Medical Corps air evacuation team. He belongs to one of the Army units which rush the sick and wounded to general hospitals by air. Fast evacuation of casualties to hospitals has dramatically reduced the number of fatalities in "brush fire" or general warfare.

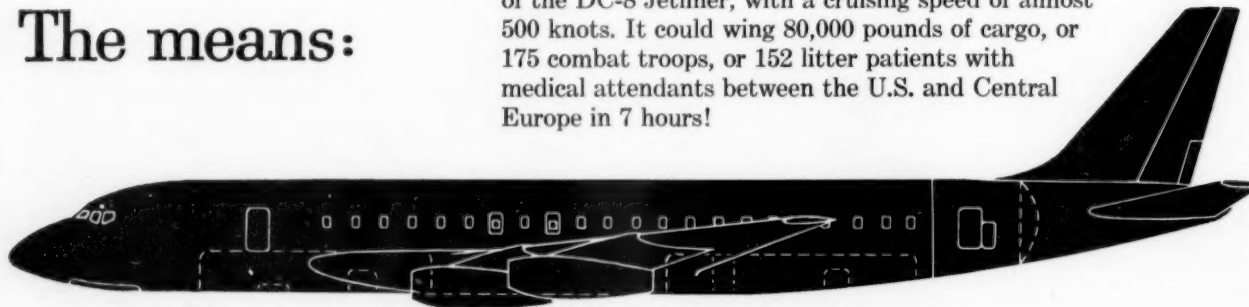

The mission:

In addition to its priority mission of supporting the strategic striking forces, Military Air Transport Service also has the humanitarian mission of air evacuation—high-speed movement of wounded from base hospitals in the theatre of operations to the finest stateside medical care.

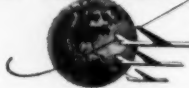

The means:

The Douglas "Jetmaster," proposed military version of the DC-8 Jetliner, with a cruising speed of almost 500 knots. It could wing 80,000 pounds of cargo, or 175 combat troops, or 152 litter patients with medical attendants between the U.S. and Central Europe in 7 hours!

Inter-Service Aviation Pathology Study Seeks Accident Cut

STATISTICALLY, it is just as dangerous to be a military aviator in peacetime as it is to be a ground officer in time of war.

This was told to delegates to the American Psychiatric Association meeting last week in Philadelphia by Capt. Philip B. Phillips, MC, USN, Head of the Neuropsychiatry Department of the Naval School of Aviation Medicine, Pensacola, Fla.

Captain Phillips pointed out that the death rate for military aviators in peacetime is just as high as that for ground officers in wartime.

The Navy, he said, loses one aviator each day by death due to accidents.

To combat this high accident rate, an inter-service committee has been formed on aviation pathology. The committee, under Capt. Carl Wilbus, USN, of the Bureau of Medicine and Surgery, will investigate human factors involved in aircraft crashes and other accidents.

Captain Phillips stressed that the flight surgeon in an aviation organization has a psychiatric responsibility before him in the prevention of aircraft accidents.

"It is his task to care for relatively 'normal,' carefully selected and highly trained young men in their efforts to adapt to what is actually an 'abnormal' environment," Captain Phillips said.

This, he told THE JOURNAL, is in contrast to the civilian psychiatrist or physician who needs only adapt his patients to a "normal" environment.

To illustrate the stress factors which affect military aviators and which must be considered by flight surgeons, Captain Phillips listed what he called the "three F's": fear, frustration and fatigue.

Fears, he said, "may center around fires, mid-air collision, flare out or engine failure, vertigo or disorientation, loneliness and depersonalization at extreme altitudes, extremes of weather, equipment failure, and even failure to complete one's mission in an acceptable manner."

"Frustrations in Flying are many," he said. "Excessive waiting while dressed in restrictive clothing, glare, radio noise, poor logistics, inadequate intelligence data, careless maintenance and questionably useful survival gear all add to the emotional burden of the aviator."

"Fatigue, both physical and mental, results from flights that are too long, too frequent or too ambitious, from sleep disturbances, lack of opportunities for rest and recreation and admittedly from poor self-discipline during such recreation periods."

MATS' Western Force Starts Transition To Douglas C-133; Hopes For Early Jets

HQ. WESTERN TRANSPORT AIR FORCE
TRAVIS AFB, CALIF.

AS the Western Transport Air Force approaches its first birthday 1 July, it is bidding for membership in the Air Force's big jet league.

One of the two major divisions of the world-wide Military Air Transport Service, WESTAF is beginning transition to the new Douglas C-133A Cargomaster turbo-prop cargo transport.

Its first Cargomaster is now in experimental service over Pacific cargo routes.

But, WESTAF Commander Maj. Gen. Russell L. Waldron, USAF, told THE JOURNAL: "We would like to have jets and it is my understanding that MATS will get us jets."

"The jets will put us up in the same league as SAC and TAC. It is kind of silly having MATS flying old conventional aircraft when the people we serve are way ahead going 500 miles an hour."

"In other words," General Waldron said, "we're way behind."

Introduction of the C-133 was described by General Waldron as a big step forward. It will carry 33 tons of cargo from here to Hickam AFB, Hawaii. WESTAF's next biggest cargo plane, the Douglas C-124, carries 18 tons along the same route.

Present plans call for WESTAF to be given one squadron of Cargomasters, based here at Travis. As the Cargomasters arrive, WESTAF's C-97's will be phased out.

The net result of the introduction of larger and faster planes along MATS western and Pacific routes, General Waldron said, will be a reduction in the number of aircraft in MATS operations.

Another move which may both increase the efficiency and speed of WESTAF operations is the reopening of the North Pacific cargo route from Travis and McChord AFB's, out through the Aleutian chain to the Far East.

Use of this route, General Waldron said will cut the time required for trans-Pacific flights to one-third of the time now required for the mid-Pacific route through Hawaii.

Ten flights a month have been scheduled for the next six months as a service test of the North-Pacific route to see if the communications and weather problems can be ironed out to establish the route on a permanent basis.

WESTAF's Staff

WESTAF, a consolidation of MATS Western and Pacific Divisions, has responsibility for all MATS airlift from the central part of the U. S. through the Far East.

In addition to General Waldron, other key members of the Headquarters staff are: Brig. Gen. E. W. Hampton, Deputy Commander; Col. E. J. York, CofS; Col. M. Goldinger, Staff Judge Advocate; Col. F. H. Lane, Surgeon; Col. C. W. Carlmark, Inspector General; Lt. Col. R. A. Hesler, Director of Administrative Services; Maj. C. L. McDermott, Chief of Information Services; Lt. Col. P. V. Collins, Chief, Safety; Col. C. L. Faught, Deputy Chief of Staff/Operations; Col. M. B. Hammond, DCS/Plans & Manpower; Col. L. Hawel, Jr., DCS/Personnel; Col. E. L. Mortimer, DCS/Maintenance; Col. T. R. Taylor, DCS/Comptroller; Col. W. J. Worcester, DCS/Materiel.

Major organization commanders within WESTAF are: Brig. Gen. G. F. McGuire, 323 Air Division, Travis AFB, Calif.; Col. Donald French, 1501st Air

SAC MEMORIAL

A special offering—which will be used to purchase a SAC memorial window—will be taken at SAC command base chapel services on a Sunday in May or June.

SAC Staff Chaplain (Col.) George S. Wilson said base chaplains will designate a Sunday during that period to receive the offering at their installations.

He explained that the memorial window will be of stained glass and will be in memory of SAC air crews who gave their lives to protect the peace of our nation. It will be installed in the SAC chapel by June '60.

Maj. Cumberpatch Chosen For Sloan Fellowship

Maj. James R. Cumberpatch, Assistant CofS of the Sacramento Air Materiel Area at McClellan AFB, Calif., has been awarded an Alfred P. Sloan Fellowship and a year of special study in industrial management at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Major Cumberpatch, USMA '44, is one of 45 outstanding young men specially selected by M.I.T. from among many candidates nominated by major industrial concerns throughout the nation.

THE ARCTIC EYE THAT NEVER SLEEPS

This plastic radome houses a radar antenna constantly scanning the skies to detect the presence of aircraft. A line of these radars provides early warning of any threatening approach to the North American continent.

The Distant Early Warning Line is now on perpetual guard duty. Spanning the Arctic from Baffin Island to Alaska, this great system was conceived at the Lincoln Laboratory of M.I.T. and produced under the leadership of Western Electric, the Bell System's manufacturing and supply unit.

But first the DEW Line had to be engineered into a workable system. This was done at Bell Telephone Laboratories.

The obstacles were formidable. Conventional means of communication—telephone poles, cables and even line-of-sight microwave radio—weren't feasible. A complicated system had to be made to operate reliably in a climate so cold that outdoor maintenance is impracticable farther than a few hundred feet from heated habitation.

Whenever possible, Bell Laboratories engineers utilized well-proven art. But as it became necessary, they innovated. For example, they designed and directed the development of a new and superior radar which automatically scans the skies, pinpoints a plane and alerts the operator.

To reach around the horizon from one radar station to another, they applied on a massive scale a development which they pioneered—transmission by tropospheric scatter. Result: at a DEW Line Station you can dial directly a station more than a thousand miles away and converse as clearly as with your home telephone.

The Bell System's contribution to the DEW Line demonstrates again how telephone science works for the defense of America.

Piston Support Hurts Our Jet Age Fighting Forces

All of the Armed Forces must be grateful for the effective job that is being done by Lt. Gen. William H. Tunner, the Commander, and his top subordinates in the Military Air Transport Service in gaining increased recognition for the urgent need of quick action to modernize MATS by procurement of modern jet aircraft. But much else needs to be done before our Fighting Forces throughout the world can count on maximum logistical support.

Last week's issue of THE JOURNAL published an interview with Brig. Gen. L. Render Braswell, the MATS Surgeon. He stressed how the acquisition of propjet aircraft would greatly improve the celebrated MATS Aero-medical Evacuation System, which moves hundreds of military patients to hospitals throughout the Nation.

In another interview, published on Page 10 of this issue, Maj. Gen. Russell L. Waldron, MATS' Western Air Force Commander at Travis AFB, Calif., gives authoritative documentation to the need for jet aircraft in the global MATS system to meet priority combat requirements.

There is no question of the need for jet transports in MATS. The big problem, of course, relates to the budget, and the reluctance of the Administration to increase military spending. As we have reported in recent issues, numerous suggestions have been made as to how jet transports could be acquired for the Armed Forces without the direct obligation of funds in big sums. Senator A. S. Mike Monroney (D-Okla.) has proposed (THE JOURNAL 28 March) that 400 modern high-speed, high-performance transports be acquired—100 for use by MATS and 300 for civilian airlines. The latter aircraft quickly would be made available to MATS in time of emergency.

Numerous details remain to be worked out, but the problems of financing the aircraft procurement should not be allowed to hide the fact that MATS must be provided with the capability to meet its military needs, and it cannot do so with present equipment. General Tunner, General Waldron, and General Braswell are worried—and the Nation should be worried too—by the present situation in which MATS finds it impossible, with aging piston aircraft, to keep pace with jet age military requirements.

Promises Made And Promises Kept

In just a few weeks, it will be one year since the Military Pay Act of 1958 took effect. Prior to its implementation on 1 June 1958, the Cordiner Committee and top officials of all the Services promised Congress that adoption of a modern system of military compensation would mean high dividends for the Nation in terms of increased retention rates and improved quality controls which would add up to heightened combat effectiveness.

Current appropriation hearings on Capitol Hill and the Air Force and Army reports, published on Pages 1 and 13 of this issue, illuminate the successes that are being achieved in attracting and retaining top-notch men for military careers.

In short, promises were made and they are being kept.

On the other hand, certain promises that were made to military people have not been kept. We refer specifically to the shocking situation in which thousands of military people retired before 1 June 1958 are being denied equitable pay benefits. On Capitol Hill, scores of bills have been introduced to remedy this morale-shattering break with historic principles of military compensation.

Efforts to achieve equity are being hampered by the Budget Bureau's resistance to the legislation. Months have gone by since Congress asked the Pentagon for its views on the remedial legislation. The Defense Department, taking its courage in its hands, has adopted the wet-rag position that it would not oppose the legislation. What is needed, of course, is an unequivocal pronouncement by Secretary of Defense McElroy that inequities against those on the retired lists must be eliminated as quickly as possible.

We hope that Congress, armed now with evidence of how the Services have kept their promises, will wait no longer for the Budget Bureau to act. Congress needs to act boldly where the Defense Department must, under orders, march a timid step.

Action Needed On General Pershing's Centennial

Reposing in the Judiciary Committees of both the Senate and the House are bills to establish a commission for the celebration of the one hundredth anniversary of the birth of General of the Armies John J. Pershing. No action has been taken in either house other than the referral of the resolution to a subcommittee in the Senate.

We appeal to these committees to take up and report these important measures as introduced by Senator Thomas C. Hennings, jr. (D-Mo.) and Representative Edith Nourse Rogers (R-Mass.). General Pershing's 100th birthday will be on 13 September 1959, so there is not much time to plan a suitable celebration. The measure does not involve the appropriation of any funds at this time, it merely authorizes the appointment of an 18-member "General John J. Pershing Centennial Commission."

The events of recent years, World War II, the Korean War, and the continuing cold war with the Communist world have had a tendency to blur the memory of General Pershing. Yet it was he who led American troops to victory in World War I, which was really the first phase of the great world upheaval and is fundamentally a part of today's history.

In honoring General Pershing, the Nation at the same time would be honoring the thousands who followed him to victory in World War I, many of whom remain in cemeteries in France, and many others who came back to fight in the second World War.

A Salute To Travis Wives—And One Suggestion

The hundreds of Service families who pass through Travis AFB, Calif., traveling to and from the Pacific, will join THE JOURNAL in saluting the wonderful job being done there by Family Service Volunteers, as reported by a JOURNAL staff member on Page 22 of this issue.

We are pleased to relate that the Officers' Wives Club at Travis, whose President is Mrs. William E. Zuerner, will donate up to $2,000 to provide furniture and equipment for an expanded Dependents' Lounge. The Lounge operates around-the-clock seven days a week to provide all possible assistance to military families.

There's just one suggestion. Why not change the name to "Family Services Lounge," or something like that, instead of calling it the "Dependents' Lounge?" We just don't like that word "Dependent."

READERS' VIEWS

Whose Pay Is Higher?

■ A recent issue of THE JOURNAL quoted Senator Stennis as being critical of Retired Officers wanting their retired pay "equalized" on the grounds that many of the retired officers were now getting more than they did on active duty.

The reason for what seems to irk Senator Stennis is something that neither the retired officers (nor those on active duty) had anything to do with. The times are inflationary. Nothing costs the same as it did—including salaries.

I would venture to say that many of the Congressmen and Senators are drawing a much larger salary than they ever did before.

A few years ago your JOURNAL ran an article on the similarity in pay between an Army (or Navy equivalent) General, I believe Major General, and a Senator or Congressman. They were and had been for some time identical. See how much difference there is today, especially with allowances allowed the legislators.

In 1929, when the War Dept. was trying to recruit some Medical Officers, the War Dept. made certain promises in a pamphlet or bulletin, including way of payment, percentage at time of retirement—and further stated that what you would receive would be equivalent to saving $100,000,000 and retiring and living on the income from same at 5%.

Those of us that received such statements from the War Dept. feel that the Government has failed to live up to what we were led to expect.

Your efforts in behalf of the retired people is greatly appreciated by us all.

LT. COL., USA-Ret.

IN THE JOURNAL

10 Years Ago—The House passed legislation to provide a uniform code of military justice for the Armed Forces. The measure now goes to the Senate for action.

50 Years Ago—RADM. C. F. Goodrich, USN, has issued a circular from the Navy Yard, New York, under date of 4 May, stating that on Saturday evening, 8 May, there will be a meeting at the New York Yacht Club, New York City, of a number of naval officers and others, who contemplate forming a Navy Historical Society.

95 Years Ago—The report of the Commissary-General of Prisoners, accompanying the Secretary of War's Report, has just been published. It shows that the number of rebel officers and men captured since the beginning of the war is: One lieutenant general, five major generals, 25 brigadier generals, 186 colonels, 146 lieutenant colonels, 244 majors, 2,497 captains, 5,811 lieutenants, 16,563 non-commissioned officers, 121,156 privates and 5,800 citizens.

Pay—Then And Now

■ When Senator Saltonstall recently stated that "some retired officers whose retired pay today, with the 6% increase, is greater than the highest pay they ever received on active duty, including all allowances," he was probably thinking of men in my category.

When I entered the military service, the annual pay of a member of the House of Representatives was $3,500 and that of a Second Lieutenant was $1,900; but the latter bought more of the necessities of life than the pay of a Colonel would do prior to the passage of the 1958 pay bill.

It is inconceivable that a retired officer who has served honorably in three wars should receive less consideration from his government than one who may retire after 1 June 1958 and who may never face an enemy in battle—as I have done on many occasions; and for which, I may add, I received my spurs.

U. S. ARMY, RET'D.

Progress Report Is Presented On The Army's Enlisted Management Program

BY
LT. GEN. JAMES F. COLLINS, USA
Deputy Chief of Staff, Personnel

SIX months ago the Army received favorable publicity when its Enlisted Management Program was first announced. Since then several of the actions included in the program have been put into effect, others are scheduled for the near future.

This article is a "progress report" to highlight some of the major actions taken during the first six months of the program. Initially, these are the key elements of the Program, more will be added from time to time—

Lt. Gen. Collins

- The Enlisted Evaluation System
- Proficiency Pay
- Promotion Qualification Score
- Promotion Plan for E-8 and E-9
- Permanent Promotions
- Centralized Assignment Policies
- Pre-Induction Aptitude Screening
- Increased Career Attractiveness

At the heart of the program is the enlisted evaluation system. Just recently (15-31 January), the first MOS proficiency tests under this evaluation system were given. The preliminary work was well done at all echelons and as a result this part of the program got off to a good start.

Commander's Prerogative

The first tests have been completely administered, scored, and returned in roster form to unit commanders. The individuals who attained at least the minimum score announced by DA are eligible for proficiency payments. However, final approval remains as a prerogative of the unit commander.

The scores were well distributed, and the commanders' evaluation reports showed that they had made a conscientious effort to make the evaluation system a good one.

185 Tests Scheduled

During calendar year 1959, approximately 185 tests will be administered to 128,000 personnel in 84 MOSs to determine qualification for proficiency pay.

A draft plan for basing promotion eligibility, above the grade E-4, on a Promotion Qualification Score has been forwarded to field commanders for comment. This plan generally envisages competition among all enlisted men in the same pay grade and 4 digit MOS in the achievement of a score which will determine promotion eligibility. The plan, through the establishment of cut-off scores, would assure that promotions go only to the top quality individuals.

Promotion to E-8 and E-9 are proceeding at the programmed rate. By the 30th of June the Army will have 2500 E-8s and 800 E-9s. Promotions of the first to E-9s began only a few days ago (1 April).

Another element of the enlisted management program is that of providing permanent enlisted promotions for the first time in eight years. Permanent promotions give recognition and add stability to the status of the professional soldier. So far allocations for 1400 to E-7; 1500 to E-6; and 3000 to E-5 have been made.

Assignment Procedures Improved

Assignment procedures have also been improved. The Army now has in effect a system of centralized control and name assignment for E-8s and E-9s which is very similar to the method used for officers. This not only gives prestige to these non-coms but also helps the Army obtain the most effective utilization of their special skills.

Enlisted personnel of grades E-7 and below will continue to be assigned through an automatic distribution system. Within the system, however, many new procedures are being initiated to individualize the assignment of these personnel also. Most overseas returnees now receive their CONUS assignment prior to departure from the overseas command. Through a unit-to-unit assignment system, still in the experimental stage, certain levied personnel are given their overseas assignments before departing CONUS. A port-call system has been developed whereby many personnel are called individually to meet a departure schedule, thus eliminating delays at the port.

Improved Utilization

All of these procedures are designed to improve the utilization of the individual and enhance his morale by individual treatment and better information. Other measures along these lines are under study.

Another facet of the overall program is the pre-induction aptitude screening of those Selective Service registrants who score low (Category IV) on the Armed Forces Qualification Test. Under the law enacted last year, the Army is no longer required to accept personnel who lack the aptitude for training. Although substantial benefits particularly in the disciplinary or behavior field have been achieved from these new screening procedures, it is too early to assess definitively the results which may have been attained.

Greater Pride Is Goal

These are but the highlights of the progress to date in the Army's Enlisted Management Program. We believe that this program is a major step forward in improving the outlook for the men and women who have decided on, or are considering, the Army as a career. One of the prime objectives is to instill greater pride in being a career soldier, a professional in the highest sense of the word. To this end, the effectiveness of any enlisted personnel policy must be measured by its influences upon the development of its enlisted leaders. One of the aims of these and other actions is the improvement of the posture and prestige of the noncommissioned officer corps to ensure that it will respond with initiative, aggressiveness, decisiveness and experience to the demands that will be placed upon it. The Army's Enlisted Management Program is contributing to this development. The vital and unique role played by our career NCO's in maintaining and enhancing the effectiveness of today's and tomorrow's Army cannot be overemphasized.

Most indications now are that the Army is gradually making progress toward attracting a better qualified individual than in the past. Many individuals who didn't have the necessary aptitudes for our modern Army have been released. Overall, the "quality" of the Army is on the upswing. The Enlisted Management Program is one of our major efforts to maintain and improve this trend. However, the program should never be considered as a panacea for all problems in the enlisted personnel area. By no means do we regard it as complete, and we are continually studying ways in which it can be improved. In short, we intend to keep it growing.

Don't Want To Oversell

In addition, we do not want to oversell the program on the basis of it being composed of entirely new elements. The Army has, of course, always been alert to provide the best possible management for its enlisted corps. The current program, on the whole, represents the culmination of several legislative and administrative projects which have been in the process of development for some time. Many of these projects came to fruition at approximately the same time, thus providing the opportunity to combine them into one overall program which will be used as a solid building block for future progress.

Our broad objective is to build a better Army of better personnel.

The Army's soldiers look better today in their new uniforms. They are better paid. They are more intelligent, and they are becoming more career motivated. It is the Army's intention to do everything within its power to give them a continually brighter outlook.

Copter Cockpit, Training Changes Proposed To Avoid Disorientation Incidents

LOS ANGELES, CALIF.

NIGHT, weather and hooded flying have been pointed out to the delegates at the Aerospace Association meeting here as the main occasions upon which helicopter pilots may become confused as to their true position in space.

Majors Herbert K. Eastwood and Charles A. Berry of the Air Force School of Aviation Medicine, Randolph AFB, Tex., reporting results of their interviews with 17 helicopter instructors.

All of the instructors reported they had experienced disorientation during one or more helicopter operations.

Disorientation is the condition where a person will have a false impression of his position in space with respect to the earth. The term also encompasses "pilot vertigo," a false sense of motion in which a person will feel himself spinning or feel that his surroundings are spinning around him.

Eleven of the pilots interviewed reported disorientation while flying night formation, with the results ranging from mild discomfort to inability to control their aircraft. Weather and hooded flight under simulated instrument conditions caused a lesser number of disorientation episodes.

To avoid disorientation episodes in the future, the two Air Force officers recommended a series of cockpit design and training changes for helicopters.

Instrumentation and cockpit design changes recommended were:

- Installation of dual instrument panels.
- A larger and more accurate instrument to show minute changes in altitudes.
- Use of the altitude indicator as a primary rather than a secondary instrument and location of it accordingly.
- An indicator to register backward airspeed.
- A new instrument flying hood and an instrument simulator strictly for helicopters.

Better windshield wipers. Training changes advocated were:

- Adequate and frequent training to familiarize pilots with the hazards and causes of disorientation.
- Constant emphasis of need to rely on instruments, and constant re-training in instrument flying techniques.
- Emphasis on the dangers of flying combinations of IFR and VFR. Do one or the other.
- Instruction for pilots and ground crews in proper preparation for night flight in helicopters, including clean windshield and using proper lights; having charts readily available; and having one pilot on IFR at all times.

Dr. Lederer Heads Aerospace Doctors, AF Surgeon General Serves On Council

LOS ANGELES, CALIF.

Dr. Ludwig G. Lederer of Washington, D. C., Medical Director of Capital Airlines and Physician-in-Chief of Washington National Airport, has been elected President of the Aerospace Medical Association at its 30th annual meeting here.

He succeeds Brig. Gen. M. S. White.

Other new officers:

Dr. George J. Kidera, Chicago, Ill., Medical Director of United Airlines, President-Elect; Capt. Oran W. Chenault, MC, USN, Assistant Chief for Aviation Medicine, Bureau of Medicine and Surgery, First Vice President.

The following vice-presidents were elected: Air Commodore A. A. G. Corbet, Ottawa, Canada, Director of Medical Services, RCAF; Brig. Gen. Tomaso Lomonaco, MC, Italian Air Force, Rome, Italy; Dr. John P. Marberger, Director, University of Illinois Aeromedical and Physical Environment Laboratory, Chicago, Illinois; Maj. Gen. Li Hsu-Chu, Surgeon General, Nationalist Chinese Air Force, Taiwan.

New members of the Executive Council are: Dr. Charles I. Barron, Medical Director, California Division, Lockheed Aircraft Corporation, Burbank; Dr. Henry A. Imus, Chief, Laboratory of Aviation Psychology, Naval School of Aviation Medicine, Pensacola, Fla.; Maj. Gen. Oliver K. Niess, Air Force Surgeon General.

Dr. William J. Kennard, Washington, D. C., was elected Secretary-Treasurer and Business Manager to succeed Dr. Thomas H. Sutherland, Marion, Ohio, who retired after holding these positions in the Association for 12 years.

IT WILL BE SURPRISING IF SAC PARTISANS don't come roaring back to counter-attack new Army-Navy assaults against its present status and future prospects. As was reported in detail in last week's issue of The Journal, the Navy's Deputy CNO (Air), VAdm. R. B. Pirie, has told Congress that SAC, "a completely deterrent force . . . undoubtedly will be replaced to a great extent by various other deterrent systems, such as the inter-continental ballistic missile the intermediate range ballistic missile, and the fleet ballistic missile Polaris. SAC," said Admiral Pirie, "may be entirely replaced. . . ."

THE ASSOCIATION OF THE U. S. ARMY contends in a newly issued statement that we "Not only have overbuilt SAC . . . we have overlooked the fact that most of the targets originally assigned to SAC are now well within the capability of the fleet and the (tactical) air forces."

The suggestion was made that retaliatory forces can be "considerably reduced without harm to the Nation's security."

SAC ADVOCATES CERTAINLY AREN'T GOING TO SIT STILL and permit such attacks to mount without a strong response. The critical moment will come, of course, when Congress completes action on the fiscal '60 military budget. Some Air Force officials have been given reason to hope that Congress, in an effort to beef up SAC strength, may knock out items elsewhere in the '60 military budget, including possibly the Navy's super-carrier, to accelerate ICBM missile procurement.

THE AMERICAN MEDICAL ASSOCIATION may take a dim view of the Aeromedical Association's change of name (The Journal 2 May) to the Aerospace Medical Association. Now there will be two medical AMA's. Two other organizations with confusing initials are the Reserve Officers Association and the Retired Officers Association.

A FORMER ASSISTANT SECRETARY OF DEFENSE, Dr. Clifford C. Furnas, Chancellor of the University of Buffalo, has been named Vice Chairman of the Army Scientific Advisory Panel. He replaces Dr. James W. McRae, who succeeds Richard S. Morse as Chairman. Mr. Morse on 31 May becomes Army Director of R&D upon the departure from the Pentagon of Dr. William H. Martin. Dr. Furnas was Assistant Secretary of Defense (R&D) from 1955-1957.

ARMY NON-COMMISSIONED OFFICERS HAVE TWO VIEWS concerning the program announced by Secretary Brucker (The Journal 2 May) to enhance NCO prestige. Some say that local commanders are given too much discretionary authority in implementing the program. NCO's with this viewpoint maintain that Army-wide the prestige program will be given shifting emphasis. On the other hand, other NCO's say that local commanders must be given leeway, that this is just exactly what is being asked for NCO's, namely the safeguarding of individual leadership.

A MEDAL OF HONOR WINNER, Brig. Gen. James H. Howard, USAFR, has been called to active duty to head an AF Air Reserve Forces Policy Committee studying the desirability of creating a separate budget for the Air Reserves. At present, this money is included in the general AF budget.

AN AIRCRAFT PERISCOPE is being perfected for flight tests by Naval planes. Designed for flash protection, the device will permit reduction of the visual opening in the windscreen to a slot about one inch high, while retaining a larger field of view. The small opening can be closed automatically in microseconds for flash protection, leaving the pilot his instrument flying capability. A contract is in process for fabrication of the airborne periscope.

GENERAL TWINING HAS RECEIVED LESS THAN RESOUNDING SUPPORT in his dispute with Senator Symington concerning the combat readiness of Thor missiles in the United Kingdom. The Pentagon permitted long hours to pass following the Senator's charges before Secretary McElroy issued an explanatory statement at 7:15 p.m. on 30 April. This statement, for obvious reasons, referred exclusively to the readiness of RAF Thor crews. Fact is, however, though U. S. officials are not making the sensitive point, that USAF Thor crews, training the RAF, have an immediate combat capability with the Thor. Many military people feel that once the JCS Chairman became involved with Senator Symington over Thor readiness, the Pentagon should have given quick and forceful support to General Twining, the belief being that this could have been presented in such a way as not to offend the British.

BUDGET-CONSCIOUS LEATHERNECK CAPT. G. J. GEORGE has come up with an idea that will save the Corps about $4,700 for construction of wooden rifle racks at the Parris Island Recruit Training Depot. His idea—instead of using expensive and cumbersome wooden rifle holders why not hang the weapons on window screen hangers that cost only 3¢ each. His superiors acknowledged the merit of the idea since $60 would purchase enough hooks to accommodate the rifles of an entire recruit battalion. Captain George is CO of "D" Company, First Recruit Training Battalion.

AN ARMY COLONEL AT FT. CAMPBELL, Ky., now commands one of the longest landing strips in the Armed Forces. The Air Force, which formerly controlled the huge air base there has turned it over to the Army. Campbell Army Air Field, as it is now known, includes a runway of more than 12,000 feet—capable of handling any aircraft now in service—and two other 5,000-foot strips. Col. John D. Edmunds, formerly 8th Army Aviation Officer, commands Campbell Army Air Field, which during April handled more than 5900 operations.

THE FISCAL YEAR END BUDGET SQUEEZE is affecting overseas movement of military personnel. To stay within money limits, the Air Force is delaying some shifts to and from overseas. The Army has been forced to cut-back on its shipment of troops via MATS. Under the industrial fund concept, the Army must pay MATS for each passenger carried and there simply isn't enough Army money through the end of June.

AN IMPROVED MECHANICAL MULE is undergoing tests by the 101st Airborne Division at Ft. Campbell, Ky. Main problem with the first models was in the starting mechanism. Willys Company engineers have developed an improved magneto and distributor. Some company experts and many Army people say that a battery would lick the all-weather starting problem, but this would reduce the pay-load about 75 pounds. At Campbell, successful tests have been made in fording the versatile mechanical mule across a river. The Division has about 475 of the vehicles, which have a capability of running on three wheels.

EX-CONGRESSMAN ERRETT P. SCRIVNER, like another former member of the House, Assistant Secretary of the Army Dewey Short, is now getting a look at the other side of the pancake. After assuming his Pentagon duties in 1957, Secretary Short said his new job confirmed the suspicion he had always held that "no pancake is so flat that it doesn't have two sides." Mr. Scrivner, now a Pentagon Special Assistant, has found, in similar fashion, the esteem in that which he had always held Defense Department workers "has gone up rather considerably" after his first-hand observation of their devotion, diligence and long work-hours.

SOME USNA GRADUATES who hoped for Air Force commissions were turned down—by the Navy, not AF. VAdm. H. P. Smith told Congress early in March that 93 of the 802 graduating midshipmen had applied for transfer to the Air Force but only 85 would be assigned. The following month, President Eisenhower nominated 84 (The Journal, 18 April).

NOW THE PRESIDENT HAS NOMINATED six more (see page 10) for a total of 90. This means that at least three were turned away—possibly more if others applied in the interim—and it's a good bet that all three were top scholars.

ALTHOUGH THE NAVAL ACADEMY permits up to 12½% of its graduates (under current quotas) to elect commissions in another Service, only 4-1/6% may come from the top of the class. The Air Force has told Congress the policy of limiting "the numbers of midshipmen with rated potential who may transfer to the Air Force" has not been adopted in like manner by the USAF Academy, which "places no restrictions on transferring to the Army or Navy." However, only one USAFA graduate elected to transfer to another Service.

SECURITY INFORMATION? The Journal asked the Navy to provide statistics on how many officers fail promotion examinations each year. The answer: "Results of officer promotion examinations are compiled for official use only and are withheld from general circulation. Any comparison, partial omission, or interpretation of these details by persons not thoroughly familiar with the entire promotion and examination procedure could create a serious morale problem beyond the control of the Chief of Naval Personnel."

THE COAST GUARD QUICKLY RESPONDED to a similar promotion examination inquiry. It reported that 84 officers have failed the same examination twice since the promotion examination requirement became effective in January 1954. This knocked them permanently out of line for advancement.

MARINE CORPS OFFICERS DON'T TAKE promotion examinations, and there are no plans to require them in the future. The tests were suspended during WWII, reinstated in 1949, and discontinued again in 1951. In 1950, about 600 officers took promotion tests; two were not promoted because of low grades.

ORVILLE WRIGHT IS LEARNING TO FLY at NAAS Saufley Field, Fla. He is Lt. (jg) Orville Wright, jr., who recently made his first solo in a Beech Aircraft T-34 Mentor trainer. He is no relation to the famed Wright brothers who made the world's first powered flight at Kitty Hawk, N. C. Lieutenant Wright's father was born in 1903 the same year that the Wright brothers made the flight in their 12-horsepower craft. Lieutenant Wright's brother, Wilbur, is an Air Force Second Lieutenant stationed in Maine. Wilbur is not a pilot.

Army Boatmen Off For Arctic Air Base

Twenty-five boatmen from the 159th
Transportation Battalion (Boat), left the Army's 3d Port at Ft. Eustis, Va., 21
April for Charleston, S. C., where they will draw and process vessels prior to departing for Arctic re-supply operations at Sondrestrom AFB, Greenland.

They will draw Landing Craft, Mechanized vessels, Tugboats and J-Boats from wet storage. Men and vessels will be loaded aboard an LSD and proceed to Sondrestrom where they will begin the task of transporting cargo from ship to shore re-supplying Sondrestrom AFB and other installations in that immediate area.

You like the service
there

Coffee costs the same... across the counter or out of an efficient, automatic dispenser. But it somehow tastes better when served with a friendly hand and a warm smile. GPM doesn't "dispense" life insurance policies: we design them to meet the special needs of officers, enlisted men and their families. For more than a quarter-century, we have given military men and their families world-wide coverage... helped them plan sound financial futures. Depend on a GPM agent... a former military man himself... to know your needs and how to serve them best.

New Riley I.G. Was Soviet Liaison Officer

Lt. Col. Ronald C. Speirs, former Executive Officer of the 12th Infantry, has been named Inspector General at Ft. Riley, Kans.

He replaces Lt. Col. William G. Phelps, who went to Turkey as a Military Advisor.

Colonel Speirs, a master parachutist with four combat jumps, attended the Army Language School at Monterey, Calif., where he studied Russian. After completing the 10-month course, he went to East Germany as Liaison Officer, Soviet Forces.

In 1957, he became the American Commandant of the Allied Spandau Prison, Berlin, where he was again associated with the Russians.

In August of 1958, he became executive officer of the 12th Infantry at Baumholder, Germany. He came to Ft. Riley as commander of the 12th's advance party in December.

He lives on Post at Riley with his wife, Leonie.

Your Personal G-2—

For 95 years personnel of all the Armed Services and members of their families have depended on The Journal to keep them informed, promptly and accurately of what is going on that concerns them professionally and personally.

Today it is more important than ever before to keep up with the news affecting the Armed Services—from the Department of Defense, Capitol Hill, the White House, Industry, and Service installations in the ZI and overseas.

You will want to make sure that each week you receive the "Spokesman of the Services."

Walker Gets Welfare Grant

A $28,200 grant has been allocated to Walker AFB, N. M. by Fifteenth Air Force for five Special Services projects.

Included are: $20,000 for a Golf Course Club House; $2,700 for tennis court lighting; $2,000 for Little League bleachers; $2,000 for gym bleachers; and $1,500 for new library books.

According to Capt. C. R. Westfall, Special Services Officer, the bulk of these projects will be started this Summer.

This grant was designated for Walker from a SAC Welfare Fund, which saw Fifteenth Air Force receive $90,000 for its respective bases. Walker alone, received almost one-third of that total for local improvements.

Dyess AFB Tops In SAC Management

Dyess AFB, Tex., has been named the top installation in the Strategic Air Command in the most recently quarterly scoring of the highly competitive SAC Management Control System.

Word that his 819th Combat Support Group had earned first place among 38 SAC bases in the United States and Puerto Rico has been received by Col. Matthew J. McKeever, Jr., base commander, from SAC headquarters.

The Combat Support Group, which is responsible for all facilities at the base, scored 90 per cent of perfection under the SAC system.

Six Master Navigators

Six officers assigned to the 4134th Strategic Wing's 72d Bombardment Squadron at Mather AFB, Calif. have advanced to the proficiency status of master navigator.

Some 25 additional navigators assigned to the organization are expected to meet requirements for the new rating in the near future.

Lt. Col. Raymond M. Watkins, Commander of the 72d, congratulated the six officers; Majors Walter T. Bigus, Stephen A. Gajan, Nolan Gershenson, Edward V. Halpin, and Virgil W. Jones, and Capt. Melvin F. Ruhmann.

Major Bigus is OIC of the mission planning section; Majors Gajan, Gershenson, and Jones, and Captain Ruhmann are B-52 radar navigators, while Major Halpin is staff navigator for the squadron.

Vadm. Sylvester Heads Exercise "Twin Peaks"

VADM. John Sylvester has been named to lead a force of more than 60 ships and 25,000 Marines in an amphibious assault on the defended beaches of Camp Pendleton, Calif.

Dubbed "Twin Peaks," the exercise will be the largest conducted since January 1957. The assault will take place late this month.

Lt. Gen. Vernon E. Megee, Commanding General, FMF Pacific, will be Landing Force Commander.

Lt. Gen. Megee

The recently converted Essex-class carrier, USS Princeton, will participate in her new role as an amphibious assault ship. The Princeton's capacity far exceeds that of the USS Thetis Bay which pioneered the vertical assault doctrine.

D-Day is 28 May. Marines will storm ashore from conventional landing craft and speed over the defense line via Princeton helicopters. Objective of the Leatherneck force is to link up and move on to their objectives.

Minesweepers and underwater demolition teams will clear a path for the beach assault.

Marine Forces include the First Division, based at Camp Pendleton, the Third Air Wing, stationed at El Toro, and other selected Force troops.

The attacking Leathernecks will be opposed by a small group of "Aggressors" with their own distinctive uniforms. Submarines and specially designated surface ships will act as the Aggressor Navy.

People Of Service At West Point

HONORED at a capping ceremony in the U. S. Army Hospital at West Point, N. Y., nine new members of the Gray Lady Service and one new Staff Aide were officially received into the hospital Red Cross Volunteer Service. Standing capless (center left to right) are Mrs. Garrison H. Davidson, Miss E. S. Corbin, and Mrs. J. E. Godwin.

Mrs. Davidson capped the new Gray Ladies (left to right), Mesdames A. H. Blair, A. J. Fern, R. H. Foley, W. C. Gelini, J. R. Goodrick, E. R. Heiberg, H. W. Lombard, sr., R. C. Morrison, D. C. Spiece, and J. S. Churan, Staff Aide Service.

Miss Corbin, Hospital Field Director, presided at the ceremony in which Mrs. J. W. Godwin, Chairman of the American Red Cross Auxiliary presented pins to the new volunteer workers.

Farewell Luncheon At Industrial College

THE final luncheon of the season will see ladies of the Industrial College of the Armed Forces say farewell to their Commandant and his lady. Pictured are Mrs. George W. Mundy; Lieutenant General Mundy; Club President, Mrs. Harold P. Streeper; Vice-President and Program Chairman, Mrs. Raymond C. Bri-sach; Secretary, Mrs. Robert C. Gesell; and Treasurer, Mrs. Clarence Bidgood. The luncheon will take place Tuesday, 12 May, at the Officers' Club at Ft. McNair, with a social hour starting at noon. Luncheon will be served at 12:45, and will be followed by a program of dances of Thailand.

SERVICE FOLK ARE IN THE NEWS:

Wade Nielsen Becomes Sill Eagle Scout; Maj. VanHoy Biggs PTA President

Wade Nielsen, son of Col. and Mrs. W. J. Nielsen, Ft. Sill, Okla., has received advancement to Eagle Scout in ceremonies held at the quarters of Col. and Mrs. L. J. De Freese. . . The Ben Milam School PTA at Biggs AFB, Tex., has elected Maj. Lonnie VanHoy as President, with Mrs. John W. Eagan as First Vice President. . .

Lt. and Mrs. Frank P. Reamer, jr., 57th F.I.S., APO 81, N. Y., N. Y., have financially "adopted" Paul Liakis, a 10½-year-old Greek boy, through Foster Parents' Plan, Inc., 352 Fourth Avenue, New York City. The Foster Parents have promised to contribute $15 a month toward the child's support for at least one year.

On 15 May, little Miss Chandra Norma Virginia Hunt, daughter of Maj. (USA) and Mrs. George T. Hunt, who was born at Ft. Eustis, Va., will be baptized in a font where her forefathers have been baptized since 1320, at St. Andreas Evangelical Church, Riede, Germany, with water brought from the River Jordan in the Holy Land by her mother. Her maternal grandmother, Mrs. G. C. J. Lohman of Los Angeles, will be her godmother, and Mr. E. C. Hunt of Chiemsee, Germany, is to be her godfather. Chandra and her parents will soon return to the States, where Major Hunt will be stationed with the Office, Chief of Transportation, Washington, D. C. The baby is the niece of Capt. (USN) and Mrs. Marshall T. Martin, also of Washington.

Charles B. Funk, son of Col. (USA) and Mrs. R. Dwight Funk, 1004 No. Kenesaw, Arlington, Va., who holds a football scholarship at Vanderbilt University, has been named to represent Vanderbilt at the forthcoming SEC track meet at Baton Rouge.

Mary Lou Patterson, Ft. Sam Houston, Tex., secretary and daughter of Maj. and Mrs. Harry F. Patterson, USA-Ret., 307 Oakglen Dr., San Antonio, and a niece of W.O. Frank C. Seideman, retired cavalryman who served for many years with the old Fifth and Seventh Regiments at Ft. Sam Houston, has been chosen "Miss Fort Sam" to represent the post for the next year at festival events. Another uncle was the late Brig. Gen. Henty P. Seideman.

Miss Judith Saunders, daughter of RAdm. and Mrs. Willard A. Saunders, USN-Ret., of Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, has been elected treasurer of the Recreation Association at Mary Washington College of the University of Virginia. Her twin, Eleanor, has been appointed to the Recreation Association Council as have Miss Ellen Wilson, daughter of Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Walter K. Wilson, jr., USA, of Alexandria, Va., and Miss Diane Doran, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Roy E. Doran, USA, APO 74, San Francisco (JUSMAG-Thailand), who is also to serve as a freshman counselor.

"DON'T PANIC" IS THE WATCHWORD:

Volunteers At Travis Give Helping Hand To Service Families Around The Clock

TRAVIS AFB, CALIF.

SERVICE families passing through this aerial port of embarkation will see most of their travel problems fade away, thanks to over 300 lady volunteers of the Travis Family Service Program.

Specially trained and organized in co-operation with the base Family Services Office, these women have equipped themselves to handle almost every type of problem which might confront a family on the move.

Does the baby need clean diapers? Little Johnny getting sick? Traveling alone with six hungry, restless children?

Don't worry. The Family Service volunteers are all equipped to help you—and it does not cost a cent.

Base of operations for this many-sided program for fast-traveling military families is a well-equipped Dependents Lounge in the heart of the Travis passenger terminal. This lounge, staffed by volunteers and matrons, is open and doing business 24 hours a day, every day of the year.

Equipment and services available in the lounge itself include a kitchen where baby formulas may be prepared, washing and drying machines, bathing facilities for mothers and children, a nursery equipped to handle young travelers, a playground to keep the children busy and occupied, and a comfortable lounge room where the adult members of the family may sit, relax and watch television.

These facilities, however, are only one small part of the services made available by the lady volunteers.

The greatest service provided by the volunteers is their ability to handle almost all emergencies and routine problems which confront the traveling Service family.

They will watch the children while the father or mother arranges transportation details. If there is an overnight or longer delay in making connections, they will arrange temporary quarters on the base.

SPECIAL SERVICES

TRAVIS AFB, CALIF.

SPECIAL services are provided by Family Service Volunteers and the Western Transport Air Force here to Service wives accompanied by more than one child and to the widows of Servicemen returning from overseas.

For wives with more than one child, the volunteers and WestAF secure a military "sponsor" to assure that each child is accompanied during his or her overseas flight.

Volunteers escort Service widows returning from overseas.

When a snag occurs in processing, they will be right on hand to smooth it out or will immediately know whom to call upon for expert aid.

When sickness occurs in a family, the volunteers unfailingly demonstrate their resourcefulness and desire to aid the unfortunate traveler. They literally take over the family to arrange for necessary hospital care and see that the children are well provided for.

When a parent must be hospitalized, they will arrange to have someone care for the children, and oftentimes will take them into their own homes.

To all visitors at this base the lady volunteers have one word of advice—"Don't be afraid to ask for assistance."

For new members of their own group they advise:

"... when some lady comes up to you in the terminal or wherever it might be and says she has appendicitis and has to go to the hospital and has to cancel her flight to Hawaii and has to have someone to care for the kids meanwhile, PLEASE DON'T PANIC . . ."

Watch for NEXT WEEK'S JOURNAL with list of "Do's and Don'ts" for Service Families traveling via Travis.

TRAVIS WIVES DONATE $2,000 FOR LOUNGE

TRAVIS AFB, CALIF.

FAMILY Service volunteers, with the help of the Officers' Wives Club on this base, will enlarge the Dependents Lounge for transient Service families to three times its present size.

The expanded lounge will continue to be located in the air terminal building.

Officers' Wives Club President, Mrs. William E. Zuerner, told THE JOURNAL the club will donate up to $2,000 to provide furniture and equipment for the expanded lounge. The equipment will include new cribs, bassinets, children's pictures and lounge furniture.

As a continuing project, the Travis OWC helps defray the costs of volunteers' uniforms and pays all baby sitting charges for the volunteers while they are on duty.

Mrs. Reagan Heads Travis Volunteers

TRAVIS AFB, CALIF.

Mrs. Chester H. Reagan is Coordinator of the Family Service volunteers at this base.

Assistant Coordinator is Mrs. Henry W. Richardson.

Other volunteer officers include:

Casualty & Emergency Services Committee—Mae Terry, Casey McDonnell, and Peggy Jenkins.

Office & Information & Referral Committee—Marian Congleton, Lu Kelsey, and Irene Haguewood.

Publicity Committee—Peggy Sherwood and Ellen Halverson.

Welcoming Committee—Mary Ann Williamson and Norma Gilmore.

Terminal Committee—Dixie Harper, Joanne Engel, and Molly Wash.

Housing Committee—Marilyn Schively.

Base Family Services Officer is 1st Lt. Joan Bowling, WAF. Assistant Family Services Officer is 2d Lt. Norman H. Jackson.

Help Handicapped

Lt. Col. Paul Buskey was named president of the Air Force Association for Handicapped Children in Hawaii at a meeting of the newly organization last week at Hickam Air Force Base.

Other officers are M/Sgt. Clarence J. Martell, vice president; Mrs. Myron Weber, librarian; Mrs. Louis Reginald, secretary; Sgt. Stephen Jankay, transportation committee chairman; and Mrs. Hubert Kean and Mrs. Myron Weber, program committee co-chairmen.

1,000 Hour Helpers

DOW AFB, MAINE—Mrs. Carolyn Schoppe, wife of Maj. John Schoppe, recently became a member of the Air Force 1,000 hour club according to 1st Lt. Victor L. Lewis, Family Services Officer at Dow.

Her record of 1057 hours in the Family Services Program represents outstanding service in the specialized departments of Housing, Information and Referral, Emergency Services, TDY, Casualty Office and Special Projects.

Service Weddings and Engagements

Navy Relief Ball

Two Navy Relief Balls will be held this year at the Newport Naval Base, it has been announced by Navy officials working on the event. A ball for officers and the general public will be held on 27 May, and for enlisted men and their guests on 28 May.

Capt. T. A. Brown, commanding officer of the Navy Supply Depot, and general chairman of the ball committee, predicts a bigger and better ball than ever before.

Captain Brown is being assisted by two separate committees for each of the balls. Cdr. G. D. Russell is chairman of the officer's ball and Senior Chief Sonarman Walter Slate, of the enlisted ball. Other committee chairman for the two balls are: Publicity Commander W. Lewis and Chief Journalist Stanley Galloway; Invitations, Commander H. Thomson and Chief Storekeeper Robert Roessler; entertainment, Commander G. D. Russell and Chief Damage Controlman Knute Borge; decorations, LCDR. J. Urban and Chief Quartermaster R. Wall; Finance, LCDR. W. Gallagher and Chief Machinist Mate Jack Hoover.

MRS. KENNETH B. O'CONNELL (above) recently assumed duties as coordinator of the Family Services at Sheppard AFB, Tex., succeeding Mrs. J. H. Wallace.

Mrs. C. G. McFarland was named assistant coordinator replacing Mrs. O'Connell.

In her new position Mrs. O'Connell oversees the work of the volunteers who assist with the Family Services program and maintains liaison between the Base Advisory Council and the approximately 35 volunteers who assist with the program.

Volunteers assist with the office work, help service personnel locate housing, conduct emergency baby sitting, loan household articles to families whose household goods have not arrived and many other incidental tasks.

Berlin, Germany—American Red Cross volunteers in Berlin Command received praise for their fine work during recent capping and recognition ceremonies at the American Community Chapel. Seven ladies received their Gray Lady caps and eight were presented their Staff Aide pins.

Guest speaker, Maj. Gen. Barksdale Hamlett, U. S. Commander, Berlin, cited the work of the volunteers throughout the world. He commented on the active part the ladies play in helping the sick and wounded regain physical and mental fitness.

Col. O. Elliott Ursin, Commanding Officer of the Berlin Army Hospital, added his congratulations.

Caps were presented to Maj. Maude M. Smith, ANC, to Mesdames Dannelet Alley, Phyllis Berlin, Shirley Byers, Grace Mastro, Ruth Smith, Edith Sturm, and Francis Symington. Pins were awarded to Mesdames Margaret Arnold, Mary House, Francis Hollis, Nina Kennedy, Vivian Liebenau, Juanita Nash, Sacha Pedlow, and Ruth Syrik.

AFSC Wives Learn To Glamorize Meals

The Armed Forces Staff College wives were given many new ideas to glamorize their meals and to entertain with ease and within a low budget by their guest speaker, Ruth Brent, at their monthly luncheon.

Ruth Brent, wife of Col. Harrison Brent, jr., USMC, author of "Time For A Party," displayed table settings for a New England Clambake, Easter Brunch, Chinese Chow Supper, Fireside Fall Supper, Children's Christmas Party, and others.

Mrs. Brent calls her New England Clambake table her favorite. The ingenious idea of a fishnet over a sea blue table cloth with a carved lobster boat centerpiece carries out the nautical theme. Large corks serve as candle holders and tiny red lobsters of plastic hold place cards while the brown napkins are fashioned into bibs. Small bean pots are finger bowls and little brown casseroles hold melted butter.

During her talk, she dropped many hints as to successful party giving and hosting. The big thing is to have a check off list made days ahead for both husband and wife. Candles put in the refrigerator a day ahead will burn slower and drip less. Always put the porch light on early to give a warm welcome and really make everybody feel at home as you greet guests at the door.

Each of her table arrangements carry out the motif for the type of dinner and she stressed the fact that so many items for decorating can be bought in the dime stores.

"April Showers Bring May Flowers" was the theme for the luncheon. Pastel pink umbrellas holding flowers in shades of pink to amethyst hung from the ceiling while the stage was a garden scene.

Quarters Kwajalein and Palau were hostesses with Mrs. Chas. B. Smith and Mrs. Chas. Wellborn, jr., wife of Vice Admiral Wellborn, jr., Commandant of the Armed Forces Staff College, and Ruth Brent, guest speaker.

Mrs. Wm. E. McElhanon as chairmen. Mrs. Jack H. Hawkins was in charge of the decorations.

After the luncheon, Mrs. Brent photographed copies of her book.

RETIRED GENERALS AT MANLIUS — In a Syracuse, N. Y., suburb, a 90-year-old military prep school now has two retired Army generals on its staff. Newly appointed as Manlius School's Assistant Superintendent is Brig. Gen. James K. Wilson, Jr., USA-Ret. Left is Maj. Gen. Ray W. Barker, USA-Ret, Superintendent, Center is Cadet Major John J. Sullivan, commander of the 345-cadet battalion.

Eustis Host To Retired; All Services Take Part

Some 100 retired officer personnel from the area met recently at the Fort Eustis Officers' Club to hear military officials discuss privileges and facilities available to them.

Eustis commander Col. C. L. Williams gave the opening remarks. The meeting was under the control of Col. William Hones (Ret.), Retired Officer Liaison, Second U. S. Army. Prominent retired officers were present representing Army, Marine Corps, Air Force, and Coast Guard.

Colonel Hones voiced the possibility of a general meeting of all retired officers from the area every six months with the next meeting to take place at Langley AFB. The meetings would rotate thereafter giving the retired personnel an opportunity to visit installations representing all services.

Other service representatives speaking were Cdr. Cyrus N. Butt, representing the commander of the 5th Naval District; Lt. Col. T. K. Lyford, representing the Marine Corps Commandant and Cdr. Albert Frost, representing the Coast Guard. They all brought greetings and offers of assistance and cooperation to the retired officer group.

Fort Eustis officials next discussed facilities and privileges available to re-

Chief Warrant Officer Ridenour and his family plan to live in Rison, Md. He plans to rest for a few months and to "do some fishing" before obtaining a job.

Members of the U. S. Army Infantry Center honored two senior officers with awards during retirement ceremonies 30 April on Fort Benning's Chapel Field.

Col. Harry E. Hornecker and Col. Edward B. James were presented a U. S. Army Commendation Ribbon with Metal Pendant and retirement certificates by Maj. Gen. Paul L. Freeman, jr., commanding general, as salutes and honors rendered by The Infantry Center Honor Guard and Band echoed the commander's congratulations and best wishes to the retiring officers, who have a total of nearly 70 years distinguished service.

Col. Hornecker holds the Bronze Star Medal. He plans to make his home at 2920 Pioneer Ave., Cheyenne, Wyo.

Col. James is making his home at 422 East Vine St., Decatur, Ala., upon retirement.

Pentagon Backs VanZandt Proposal Adding $578,000 To Service Retired Pay

From first page—

ber 1949 to include inactive service in the recomputation of their retired pay, retirement pay, retainer pay, or equivalent pay, if they elected to recompute their pay under the Career Compensation Act of 1949.

At present they may count only active service in recomputing their pay if they are paid under the 1949 act.

Those who retired after 30 September 1949 may count both active and inactive service.

The Air Force said, however, that under the original wording, a member retiring for any reason prior to 1 October 1949 would be eligible to have his retired pay computed under the laws in effect prior to that date with the benefit of the applicable rate prescribed for his grade by the Career Compensation Act of 1949 as amended.

This, the report to Congress states, "would definitely discriminate against a member retiring for physical disability after 30 September 1949."

A member who retired for physical disability under the law in effect before passage of the Career Compensation Act was awarded retired pay based on 75% of his base pay regardless of the percentage of his physical disability.

Any member who retired for physical disability under the Career Compensation Act has to be at least 30% physically disabled and his retired pay is determined by multiplying an amount equal to the monthly basic pay held at the time his name was placed on the temporary disability retired list or at the time of his retirement, whichever is earlier, by the percentage of disability, unless he elects to receive retired pay based on years of service.

The Air Force cited an example for Congress: A captain who had only a 10% physical disability prior to 1 October 1949 would get 2½ times as much retired pay as a captain retiring today with 30% disability and who had 12 years of service.

The original VanZandt measure also would have permitted officers retired prior to 1 October 1949 with less than 30 years service, who served in any capacity during World War I, to have their retired pay recomputed on the basis of 75% of their active duty pay at the rate prescribed in the Career Compensation Act.

Speaking for the Defense Department, the Air Force said it is "opposed to authorizing these officers to receive 75% of the basic pay rates provided by the Career Compensation Act."

The Air Force recommended that the bill be revised to exclude those officers retired for physical disability and to prevent those regular officers who served prior to 12 November 1918 from receiving, solely because of such service, 75% of the basic pay provided in the Career Compensation Act.

The new draft, proposed as a substitute, and introduced by Representative VanZandt, would add $578,506 to the retired pay roll. Of this amount $424,000 would go to the Army; $110,240 to the Navy; $25,186 to the Air Force, and $19,080 to retired Marine Corps officers.

Col. Booth To Retire

Col. Leon Booth, Special Assistant to the Deputy Chief of Staff, Development, USAF, will retire from the Regular Air Force, 30 June 1959, after 28 years of service in the Reserves, National Guard, and the Regular Air Force.

Colonel Booth, one of the Air Force's most experienced public relations officers, served as Director of Information Services for the U. S. Air Force in Europe, the Tactical Air Command, and the Air Research and Development Command. He also served in the Office of the Secretary of Defense in public relations and as Assistant Director of Information Services, in the Office of the Secretary of the Air Force.

Prior to entering active Federal service in January 1941 Colonel Booth was president of Booth, Pelham and Company, Inc., an advertising and public relations agency in Shreveport, La.

He is a former member of the Editorial Staff of the Shreveport Times and the Shreveport Journal in Louisiana. He was also Editor and Publisher of a weekly newspaper in Bossier City, Louisiana.

Since Colonel Booth has been associated with the Air Force Research and Development program for the past nine years he plans to remain active in a civilian capacity in this type of work after his retirement, but as yet has made definite plans.

"MISS BAMC"

The 1977 "Miss BAMC" contest is already taking shape.

Miss Bame Francois Mershon, born at Brooke Army Hospital this month, might well be the number one entry. She's Brooke Army Medical Center's namesake. Her first name is made up from the initial letter in the four words in the center's title.

Her father, Sp-5 Uldean E. Mershon, explained, "We chose the name to show our appreciation for excellent treatment given Mrs. Mershon during two illnesses and two child deliveries at Brooke Army Hospital." The other BAH baby is Debora Defaye, age 2.

The BAMC motor pool sergeant and Mrs. Mershon also have two sons, Bruce Wayne, 13 and Uldean Edward, Jr., 7. The family resides at 547 McMurry Rd., Ft. Sam Houston Village #1.

AF Studies Boosting Regular Strength; Sees Improvements In Career Field

qualified applicants with college education increased to 43% in fiscal '58, as opposed to 25% in fiscal '57.

In addition, by changing the cut-off score for civilian high school applicants, the Air Force is now accepting only those who score in the upper 11% of all persons taking the tests.

Two new procurement programs have been developed and are to be implemented to provide the Air Force with an additional source of highly qualified young officers capable of filling critical skill requirements.

One—the "Officer Training Program"—is for college students who did not participate in AFOTC. Selections for this program, Colonel Horton said, will be matched to specific Air Force needs with "heavy emphasis on those qualified to enter technical career fields."

The other—the Officer Candidate Education Program—will offer educational training to highly qualified airmen who will eventually be commissioned to fill officer spaces in critical skill areas.

Officer Retention

Colonel Horton said the target of the Air Force officer retention program has been the young obligated tour non-career Reserve officers. The non-career Reserve Officer category comprised 35% of the officer corps in April 1956, but has decreased to approximately 15% as of last November.

At the same time, he pointed out, the percentage of Regular Officers has increased from 18 to 35, and further augmentation is expected to increase the number of Regulars to 49,000 by the end of June.

Promotions

Discussing officer promotions, Colonel Horton said the Air Force has "made a significant change in both the temporary program and the permanent promotion programs for Regular officers."

By using the "best qualified" procedure in selecting officers for promotions to all grades above captain, the Air Force is insuring that only highly qualified officers attain field grades, he said.

"Active duty officers are now competing for temporary promotion to the grades of lieutenant colonel and colonel with approximately a 5% opportunity for selection and to the grade of temporary major with less than a 10% opportunity."

He said this highly competitive process "insures the temporary promotion of only the best qualified."

Promotion policies will be further improved, he said, by enactment of the "White Charger" legislation now before the Senate Armed Services Committee. This proposal, as previously reported in THE JOURNAL, will establish a mandatory requirement for "best qualified" selections to all grades above captain, accelerated permanent promotion of outstanding Regular officers who are not in primary zones of consideration, and involuntary early retirement of permanent colonels and lieutenant colonels.

The latter authority, Colonel Horton said, "will allow us to involuntarily retire certain officers whose active duty services are no longer required, but whose record of performance will not justify elimination under AFR 36-2."

He noted that the Air Force is "not looking for mass elimination" under this program, and pointed out that 90% of the colonels considered for involuntary retirement "will have to be retained."

Demotions

Although only five officers were demoted during the period from 1951 to 1957, Colonel Horton said new demotion policies used since then have resulted in the demotion of 263 officers.

"The reports from the commands," he said, "indicate that they have adopted the policy of requiring their temporary officer promotion boards, when screening the records for promotion, to also identify and recommend officers for demotion. Most of the commands report that full impact of the officer demotion program is only now being realized at all levels of command."

The manpower spokesman said the commands "believe that the emphasis placed on this program is providing them with an effective tool to increase the over-all effectiveness of the officer corps."

The Big Picture

Recalling that emphasis on the Personnel Quality Control Program is less than a year old, Colonel Horton said passage of the 1958 Military Pay Act has enabled the Air Force to:

- Increase the quality standards that personnel must meet to join the Air Force.
- Apply new criteria to insure a high degree of selectivity, and
- Revise old or establish new procedures to help identify and eliminate submarginal personnel.

In summary, he said, the Air Force now has "an effective personnel quality control program in being. The major commands reported that the tools to do the job are known and were being implemented. The data presented indicates a significant degree of improvement in some areas while in other areas more conclusive results will not be available until later in the year."

Main Air Force efforts in the future, he said, will be concentrated on policy modifications required to keep the program effective, and simplification of the administration of the program.

British-German Vehicles Under Test

ABERDEEN PROVING GROUND
MARYLAND

THE U. S. Army has under test here a 3/4 ton 4x4 British "Land Rover" with a newly designed power plant and a German 3/4 ton 4x4 DKW.

The famed Ordnance test center has as one of its missions the evaluation of foreign military developments.

The "Land Rover" being tested at Aberdeen is a standard model, except for the new power plant in which torque is transmitted to the wheels by a four speed transmission in conjunction with a high-low range transfer box.

The in-line, overhead valve, 4 cylinder, water-cooled engine operates solely on diesel oil. Engine flexibility and speed are well above average for this type of power plant.

The small, 125 cubic inch engine and inherent high efficiency give the vehicle good cruising range.

The DKW designed and manufactured at the request of NATO, by Auto Union of Ingolstadt, Bavaria, is fundamentally a four-place personnel carrier of the "Jeep" type, designed to be robust and easily maintained. The vehicle has continuous four-wheel drive, high-low range transfer, and fully independent suspension.

The engine is a 3-cylinder, vertical in-line type displacing 59 cubic inches and operating on the 2-stroke principle. It is water cooled and mounted in the orthodox front position. Each cylinder has its own ignition circuit.

The vehicle is unique in having interchangeability between many parts from front to rear and left to right. It is being tested by Aberdeen Proving Ground to study engineering characteristics.

Dr. J. Stork of The Netherlands, and an officer of the Federation Dentaire International, reports a wide disparity in the number of dentists per capita in various Nations of the world. West Germany has a favorable ratio of one dentist for every 1,600 citizens while the United States has one dentist per 1,900 citizens. On the other extreme, Arabia (Yemen) has only one dentist per 1,750,000.

Navy Aids Uruguay

The Edisto, under command of Cdr. Henry D. Davison, was enroute to Buenos Aires after completing an Operation Deepfreeze assignment, when she was diverted to Montevideo 16 April to assist in evacuation of disaster victims trapped by flood waters.

In addition to rescuing more than 200 persons, the Edisto's helicopters delivered 1,599 pounds of powdered milk, a truck load of medical supplies, 22 rubber boats and blood plasma. The ship rendered aid for 12 days.

Norwegian Nike Unit Equipped At Ft. Bliss

A complete set of Nike guided missile equipment—radars, launchers, vans—has been delivered to the 1st Norwegian Nike Battalion at Ft. Bliss, Tex.

Lt. Gen. Frederick Motzfeldt, Chief, Royal Norwegian Air Force, accepted the equipment, which is being provided under the Military Assistance Program. This equipment will be transported to Norway, where the battalion will become the first Nike unit in Norway's air defense system.

The presentation, marking the readiness of the Norwegian Air Force unit to join other Air Defense units of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, was made by Maj. Gen. Sam C. Russell, Commanding General, U. S. Army Air Defense Center, at the McGreager Guided Missile Range.

Members of the 191-man Norwegian battalion have been training on the Nike Ajax and Nike Hercules guided missiles at the Air Defense Center since early 1958.

INDUSTRY IN DEFENSE

W. B. Bergen Elected President of Martin; G. M. Bunker Remains As Board Chairman

William B. Bergen, who joined The Martin Company as a vibrations engineer upon his graduation from MIT in 1937, has been elected President of the firm. Previously he had been Executive Vice President.

Mr. Bergen

Mr. Bergen succeeds George M. Bunker, who has been President for the past eight years. Mr. Bunker remains in his position as Chairman of the Board and Chief Executive of Martin.

As President, Mr. Bergen will direct the functioning of Martin's seven operating divisions.

As a vibrations engineer, and later as chief flight test engineer, Mr. Bergen developed the skills and techniques in telemetering and electronics guidance systems, which led to the establishing at Martin in 1945 of a guided missile section with Mr. Bergen in charge. Today, more than 70 percent of the company's backlog is in missiles, electronics and related equipment.

Mr. Bunker as chairman will devote his full energies to the broad spectrum of activities necessary to the assembling of highly-trained technical teams, and to the development of a wide range of diversified skills and facilities.

Mr. Bergen becomes the first man to rise through the ranks of the company to the position of President.

Mr. Bunker

New Ryan Firebee Drone Joins Fleet

THE latest Navy Firebee jet drone in production at Ryan Aeronautical Company, San Diego, has become operational with the Pacific and Atlantic Fleets. Designated KDA-4, this fast "foe" flies 10 miles high at speeds in excess of 600 miles an hour to aid missile marksmanship.

The KDA-4 Firebee recently flew above 48,000 feet for 78 minutes at the Naval Missile Center, Point Mugu, Calif., to set new records for Navy production drone aircraft. Another Ryan Firebee jet drone for the Navy, the XKDA-2, not yet in production, has also achieved record performance of nearly 53,000 feet altitude and flown for 53 minutes before parachute recovery, in its first flights. It is powered by a new Fairchild J-44-R-26 turbojet engine which develops greater thrust than those used in current Navy Firebees.

In Navy operations, the Firebees are recovered at the end of an operation by parachuting them into the ocean for retrieval, virtually undamaged, by helicopter or surface craft. Individual Firebees have performed as many as 21 flights before being expended—thus providing an extremely economical high performance target for realistic evaluation of weapons systems.

The pioneer Firebee operational squadron in the Navy is Utility Squadron Three, U. S. Naval Auxiliary Air Station (Brown Field), in Chula Vista, Calif., which has flown more than 100 Firebee missions in helping the Fleet maintain missile combat readiness. In addition to Point Mugu and Brown Field, Firebees are in use at the Navy Ordnance Test Station, China Lake, Calif., and at the U. S. Naval Station, Roosevelt Roads, P. R.

Firebees will be the missile targets in the 4th Annual Naval Air Weapons Meet being held at the Marine Corps Auxiliary Air Station, Yuma, Ariz., and off San Clemente Island, next Fall. Combat ready squadrons from the Pacific and Atlantic Naval Air Forces and Marines will compete in this meet for national honors.

'39 USNA Grad Heads Sperry Field Div.; Other Former Service Men In Industry

The appointment of Rolland E. Erbentraut, USNA '39, as Manager of Sperry Gyroscope Company's Field Engineering Division, an international organization for customer service and training, has been announced by Arthur R. Weckel, Vice President of the Great Neck, N. Y., company.

At the same time, the company appointed Mr. Stuart G. Farnum as Sales Manager of the Division.

The 900-man organization is responsible for field engineering, repair service and customer training in the use of the company's 200 or more marine, aviation, military and industrial products. It directs the operations of 400 field engineers, district offices in 16 major U. S. cities, representatives in 14 foreign countries, and a group of customer technical training schools.

Mr. Erbentraut has been associated with Sperry for 20 years in various sales and field engineering positions. He resides with his wife and five children at East Williston, N. Y.

Mr. Farnum received a B.S. degree in electrical engineering from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in 1947 and is a member of Eta Kappa Nu, honorary electrical engineering society. Since joining Sperry in 1949, he has worked principally with the Air Force on engineering programs involving Sperry bombing-navigation systems and flight controls. Mr. and Mrs. Farnum and their three children live in Port Washington, N. Y.

Frank L. Spencer, a WW II Air Force Captain, has been promoted from Assistant Manager to Manager-Customer Relations for Waste King Technical Products Division, Los Angeles.

Kenneth M. Miller has been promoted to the position of General Manager of the LearCal Division of Lear, Inc., and Edward F. Conklin to Assistant to the Chairman of the Board. Conklin formerly held the manager's post while Miller was chief engineer of LearCal, the company's civil avionics division. Conklin was an Air Force officer in World War II, was Director of Operations, Ferrying Division, Air Transport Command.

W. W. (Win) Harris recently assumed the position of Corporate Director of Contracts with the American Bosch Arms Corporation. C. W. Perelle, president, has announced. Mr. Harris, formerly vice president in charge of marketing with the Roots-Connersville Blower Co. of Connersville, Ind., served a seven-year tour with the U. S. Air Force from 1940 to 1947. He achieved the rank of major while serving as a pilot, bombardier, and navigator.

Gerard W. Kaufhold, a WW II Army veteran and formerly a Project Engineer with the Air Materiel Command at Wright-Patterson AFB, Ohio, has been named Sales Manager for Infrared Systems of the Crosley Division of the Avco Corporation, reporting to T. J. Michel, General Sales Manager, Bomber Defense Systems and Communications.

Mr. Kaufhold comes to Crosley well qualified for this newly created position. He formerly was employed by the Republic Aviation Corporation, Farmingdale, Long Island, New York, as research and development project administrator. Reporting to Mr. T. J. Michel, General Sales Manager, Bomber Defense Systems and Communications, Mr. Kaufhold will coordinate the company's expanding business in infrared equipment.

Prior to his association with Republic, Mr. Kaufhold was fighter airplane project engineer with the U. S. Air Force Air Materiel Command, Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, Ohio.

A native of Cincinnati, he attended Cincinnati schools and graduated from the University of Cincinnati with a Bachelor of Science degree in Aeronautical Engineering. In addition, he received his Master's degree in Industrial Engineering at Ohio State University. He is a veteran of World War II and served with the U. S. Army in the Pacific cam-

DOUGLAS MISSILE AWARD

The Air Force has selected Douglas Aircraft Company to make a design study of an advanced ballistic air-to-surface missile to be launched from strategic bombers.

The contractor will develop specific performance and cost data upon which further cost and effectiveness studies can be based.

It is anticipated that the initial study period will require approximately six months, the Pentagon said.

He is a member of the Institute of Aeronautical Sciences and the American Ordnance Association.

He, his wife, Joyce, and four children plan to reside in Cincinnati.

Don E. Morgan, formerly Deputy Transportation officer for the Department of Army at the Presidio of San Francisco, California has been appointed Chief of Neptune World Wide Moving's newly established Military Division.

Mr. Morgan will maintain his offices in the New Rochelle, New York World Headquarters of Neptune World Wide Moving and will reside in Larchmont, New York with his wife, Marie and daughter, Tara.

Appointment of Clifford A. Falkenau to the newly-created post of assistant to the director of customer relations for Sylvania Electronic Systems, a division of Sylvania Electric Products, Inc., has been announced by James H. Brewster, III, divisional director of customer relations. Sylvania is a wholly-owned subsidiary of the General Telephone & Electronics Corporation. Mr. Falkenau is a Major in the active reserve of the Army Corps of Engineers, and during World War Two saw action in the China-Burma-India Theatre. With his wife and two children, he makes his home at 43 Norman Street, Marblehead, Mass.

New Electronic System Controls Navy Ordnance

An electronic data processing system—heart of which is a Burroughs Corporation 220 computer—will take control of the flow of ordnance supplies to depots 12 May.

Acceptance Ceremonies will be held 12 May at the U. S. Naval Ordnance Supply Office, Mechanicsburg, Pa., with RADM James W. Boundy, Chief of the Bureau of Supplies and Accounts, presiding.

Capt. R. L. Myers, Depot Commanding Officer, said that the system will control three major supply areas—technical records, inventory control and shipboard allowance lists, as well as guided missile inventory, provisioning, price changes and transaction item reporting.

T. F. Horton Joins D. C. Office Of Hoffman

Appointment of Thomas F. Horton to the Washington, D. C., sales staff of Hoffman Laboratories Division, Hoffman Electronics Corporation, has been announced by Jack G. Anderson, division director of military marketing.

He is a graduate of the University of Maryland and lives with his wife and three daughters at 5420 Harwood Road, Bethesda, Md.

Missile Range Contract

A contract for $1,464,023 has been awarded the Federal Electric Corporation of Paramus, N. J., for the operation of range instrumentation equipment at the national missile facility, Point Arguello, the Pacific Missile Range at Point Mugu.

Federal Electric Corporation is the service organization of International Telephone and Telegraph Corporation.

Subcontractors are Rheem Manufacturing Company of New York City, and Marquardt Aircraft Company, Pulmona, Calif., division.

First Tripartite Conference Scheduled For Rucker; L/C Oswalt Is Coordinator

The Army Aviation Center at Ft. Rucker, Ala., will participate in the first Army Aviation Tripartite Conference, to be conducted at Rucker between 5-10 October. Representatives from the United Kingdom, Canada and the United States will attend.

Purpose of the conference is to discuss selected items of mutual interest pertaining to Army aviation in the three armies, and to reach standardization agreements on certain subjects so as to facilitate joint operations in the field.

Lt. Col. John W. Oswalt, Army Aviation School, is Chief U.S. Coordinator and member of the Secretariat, for the Tripartite Conference.

The U.S. Chairman has yet to be named.

Col. James F. Wells, Director of the U. S. Army Board for Aviation Accident Research, participated in the first World Congress of Flight 12-19 April in Las Vegas, Nev. He also attended the Air Force Industry Safety Conference in Palm Springs, Calif., 20-21 April. Accompanying him was Capt. Forrest W. Johnson, Chief Analyst of USABAAR's Analysis and Research Division.

Capt. Thomas E. Sears of the 4th Infantry Division's 34th Armor at Ft. Lewis, Wash., will direct all air traffic during Exercise Dry Hills 9-23 May at the Yakima Firing Center. Four types of Army helicopters and three kinds of fixed wing craft, including two newly assigned "Otter" transports, will be used in the 20,000-man training exercise.

Army Aviation primary fixed wing flight training will be transferred this summer from Camp Gary Tex., to the U. S. Army Aviation School at Ft. Rucker, Ala. The last class will terminate at Gary 30 June, and the station will be inactivated by 30 September.

Brig. Gen. Ernest F. Easterbrook, Commanding General of Rucker, said the decision to transfer this aviation training and to inactivate Gary is in consonance with the overall program of the Army to attain increased efficiency in operations and to effect a substantial reduction in annual costs. Training will commence at Rucker about 15 September.

Plans call for primary training at Ft. Rucker to be accomplished by civilian contract as is being done at Gary now. The principal difference will be in the installation support area. Gary is completely operated by civilian contract with only a small military detachment for contract supervision and quality control of training. Contract work at Rucker will be hi-lited primarily to utilization of civilian instructors and pilots for flying training.

ATOMIC PROVOST

Lt. Col. Milton J. Weber has completed a 45-month tour as Provost Marshal of Sandia Base, N. M., and will become Provost Marshal of the Southern European Task Force at Verona, Italy.

Army Names 50 Captains In S.O. 85

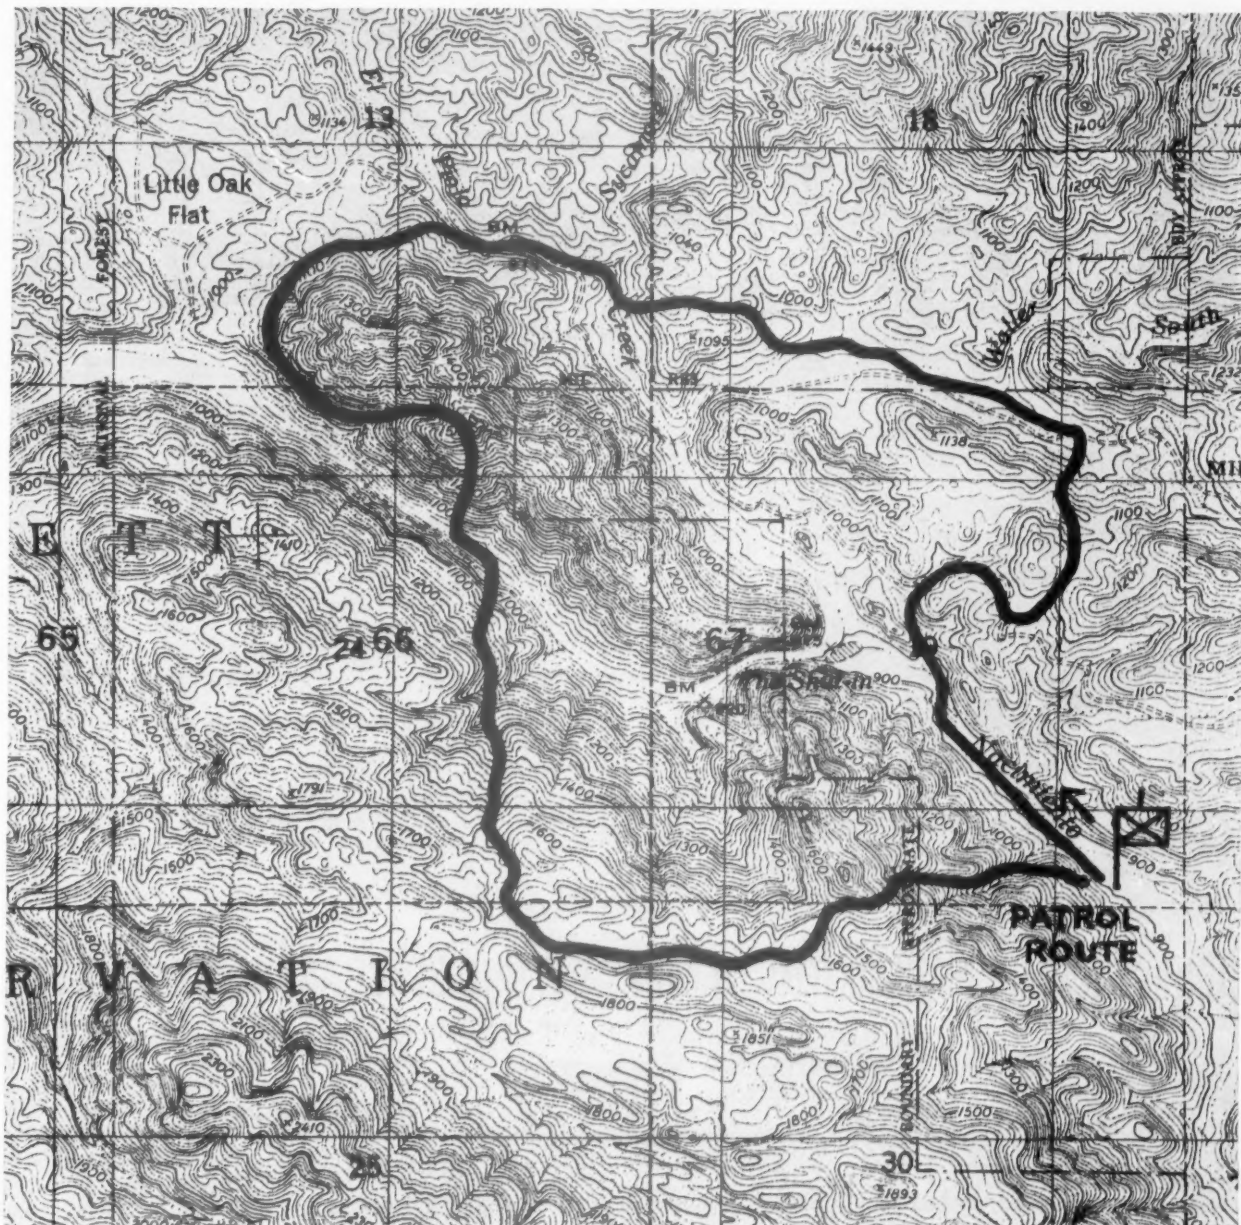

THE following 50 Army first lieutenants have been promoted to temporary captain in S.O. 85, effective 30 April. Their promotions extend through Numbers 1164 and 64 on the Army and Medical Service Corps promotion lists in Circular 624-43, dated 27 January.

10-hour patrol takes 10 minutes

In today's Pentomic Army the Company Commander's best vantage point is from the air—where he can cover the company's combat sector in minutes.

Specifically designed for observation and liaison, the Hughes YHO-2HU is the first helicopter fully functional for this specialized need.

It has long range, high performance...great agility to get in and out of cramped quarters.

The rugged YHO-2HU is always action-ready. Components are designed for at least 1000-hour life. Field maintenance requires no special tools.

The basic simplicity of design makes it possible to procure and use the YHO-2HU for half the cost of other operational helicopters.

ARMY AIR DEFENSE COFS CITED—

"Exceptionally meritorious" service of Brig. Gen. D. B. Johnson (right) as Chief of Staff of the Army Air Defense Command during the past two years is recognized personally by Lt. Gen. Charles E. Hart, the Commanding General. A Certificate of Achievement is presented to General Johnson for "outstanding accomplishments" of General Johnson in helping to guide the nationwide command through a period of rapid growth and modernization with missile weapons. General Johnson, who completes his tour of duty at USARADCOM Headquarters 14 May, is scheduled for an assignment with the Eighth U. S. Army in Korea.

Senate Action To Retain Army, Marine Strength Poses Problems At Pentagon

From first page— signed "to serve clear notice on the administration that we want an Army of 900,000 men and a Marine Corps of 200,000 men, and that we do not want these cuts to continue; and that we want their strengths to be built up at the earliest possible moment."

The new Army proviso was drafted by Louisiana's Democratic Senators Russell B. Long and Allen J. Ellender. Senator Ellender said it is time Congress "put its foot down" to show that it meant what it said in providing funds for an Army of 900,000.

Both provisions are contained in amendments to the fiscal '59 supplemental appropriations act, previously approved by the House, and now slated for conference action following Senate passage on 30 April.

The Defense Department's legal experts, meanwhile, are busily engaged in an analysis of the new language to determine the exact effect it will have on the Pentagon's manpower programs, and the recommendations to be made to the White House. They are aware that if the language is upheld in conference, the President will have to decide between three courses of action: to accept the Congressional mandate, veto the entire appropriations measure or call for a decision from the Attorney General as to the constitutionality of the amendments.

One problem area already identified by the Pentagon is the need for additional funds if the President should accept the mandatory floors.

This problem arises from the fact that the Defense Department, acting on the advice of the Budget Bureau, already has committed some of the "extra money," voted for the Army and Marine Corps last year, to other bank accounts (principally, to pay increased civilian salaries), and no longer has a "surplus kitty" with which to rebuild the strength of the two Services.

Both the Army and Marine Corps, in anticipation of their lowered fiscal '59 end-year strengths, already have cut back to approximately 880,000 and 182,000, respectively. Thus, to meet the Congressional requirements, they would have to put at least 37,000 men back in uniform before 1 July.

These complicating factors are being given careful scrutiny within the office of the Defense Department General Counsel, and the respective Services.

Senator Ellender, meanwhile, has said he will attempt to place similar mandatory language in the fiscal '60 appropriations act.

The Army language in the supplemental funds bill is tied to the Army's operation and maintenance bank account and reads: "Provided, That no part of the funds herein appropriated shall be used for the purpose of reducing the strength of the active Army below 900,000, nor be expended directly or indirectly for the purpose of transporting any person or persons pursuant to any plan or program for reducing the strength of the Army below 900,000."

The Marine Corps language added to the supplemental funds bill amends the fiscal '59 Defense Appropriations Act to provide "That Marine Corps personnel paid from this appropriation shall be maintained at an end strength of not less than 200,000 for the fiscal year 1959."

Senator Saltonstall questioned the language of the amendments. He said in his opinion, "and also in the opinion of the counsel of the Department of Defense, the language will have to be considerably altered if it is to be included in the bill," otherwise Army operations might be hampered and the Navy and Marine Corps might find it difficult to pay their personnel.

Memorial To Korea Pilots At Williams

Armed Forces Day at Williams AFB, Ariz., will be highlighted by the dedication of a memorial to USAF fighter pilots who lost their lives in the Korean conflict.

Following a wing review, General O. P. Weyland, Commander of Tactical Air Command and Commander of Far East Forces during a major portion of the Korean conflict, will dedicate the memorial, an F-86, mounted at the entrance to Williams, the nation's first jet fighter school.

"We feel that this is a very appropriate location for such a memorial," said Col. Milton B. Adams, Commander of Williams AFB, "since so many of the pilots of the Korean conflict received jet training at 'Willie' at one time or another. Also this is the last regular USAF establishment utilizing the famed F-86 Day Fighter."

Among the distinguished guests for the dedication will be the Governor of Arizona, Maj. Gen. Chester E. McCarty, Commander of Twelfth Air Force, several former commanders of Williams, a number of jet aces of the Korean conflict and representatives of the leading aviation companies which built the fighter flown by the USAF in the Korean conflict.

The dedication ceremony will be followed by a program featuring the Thunderbirds, the official USAF demonstration team, Bob Hoover of North American Aviation Corporation demonstrating precision flying in an F-100, a demonstration of nuclear weapon delivery techniques, a drill exhibition by the AFROTC unit from Arizona State University, the AFROTC Band, a jet assisted takeoff by an SA-16 of the 302d Air Rescue Squadron (Reserve), a live parachute jump and other aerial demonstrations as well as static displays of the latest aircraft and weapons in the USAF inventory.

...NEWS IS HAPPENING AT NORTHROP

Now in production—the world's first space-age trainer—USAF T-38 Talon. Mission: to train tomorrow's airmen in the art of supersonic flight.

UNIQUE NORAIR MANAGEMENT METHODS CUTTING SPACE-AGE AIRCRAFT COST !

T-38 Talon is the first of Northrop's new family of high-performance, low-cost aircraft produced at Norair, Hawthorne, California. Using an inherently economical design as a base, Norair management is reducing costs even further by applying three Norair-created methods.

Pace—Performance And Cost Evaluation—is Norair's new way to measure group effectiveness. Its successful application to the T-38 program has created wide military and civilian interest.

Norair's Target Cost Control constantly monitors all areas of cost—from preliminary design to final assembly. Such a continuing control system keeps production costs at a minimum, assures maximum efficiency.

Years-Ahead Production Techniques utilize Norair's 20 years of airframe experience. In the area of honeycomb structures—for example—Norair-designed high-accuracy forming, contour milling, and adhesive bonding techniques trim T-38 costs—producing higher-quality hardware for less money.

Norair combines these and other management methods with its completely integrated research and development facilities. Result: earlier and more effective answers to the problems of free-world defense in the space age—at minimum cost.
